PROGRAM AIMED AT REDUCTION OF DEFICIT OUTLINED FOR ROOSEVELT BY SENATE AIDS

MANUFACTURERS URGE ROOSEVELT TO CLARIFY AIMS

New Demand for Clearer Statement of New Deal Objectives Comes as Business Shows Further Advances.

FOREIGN TRADE EXPANDS SHARPLY

Sloan Calls for Drive To Stir Activity in Consumers' Goods Industries as Key to Recovery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Statistical indications of improving business were joined today by a new call upon President Roosevelt to issue a statement of New Deal objectives in furtherance of the move for effective co-operation between business leaders and the administration.

C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, issued a statement asserting that business "must have more definite ideas as to the direction in which the government is headed." The government, he said, "must project a course that can actually be followed."

From the commerce department meanwhile came a report that American export business for October reached its highest total since April, 1931. The figure was $206,352,000 as compared with imports of $129,629,000, producing a $76,723,000 balance of trade in favor of the United States.

Improvement Reported.

At Warm Springs, coincidentally, two senate leaders, Robinson, of Arkansas, and Harrison, of Mississippi, told President Roosevelt that the economic situation was showing definite signs of improvement. Rudolph S. Hecht, president of the American Bankers' Association, carried a similar message to the chief executive.

A prominent figure in the manufacturing world, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, speaking at Nashville, called for a concentration upon stirring up activity in the consumer goods industries, as a means of improving the situation in the durable goods field, which he termed the key to recovery.

At the same time, Senator La Follette expressed in New Orleans the opinion that a continuation of relief appropriations will be essential "until the nation is able to recover its economic health under its own strength."

Bardo's statement, issued in New York, recalled the action of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in asking President Roosevelt to answer a six-point questionnaire covering his policies for the future. The chief executive made no reply.

Confidence Needed.

"The president's recent assurance that the administration is not hostile to such fundamentals of American economy as private initiative and the profit motive is heartening," he said. "Confidence is the most important factor in any effort to chart the future trend of American business.

"If business is to get on its feet it must have more definite ideas as to the direction in which our government is heading. Our welfare not only for the immediate future but for years to come will depend upon the clearness with which these principles are set forth by the administration in Washington. The government must project a course that can actually be followed."

Bardo's appeal was made with the stated purpose of providing a basis for an adequately planned co-operation to be developed at a "congress

Bilbo Slaps at Long On 'Clownish Stunts'

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 26. (AP)—Senator Huey P. Long abruptly terminated his ax and crosscut saw assault on the woods hereabouts today, just as his colleague and neighbor, Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, turned loose a broadside on the subject of woodchopping which promised to air some interesting differences of opinion between the two.

"Woodman, spare that tree," quoted Bilbo, announcing he was saving his own ax for "blustering, deceiving, designing and ambitious politicians that mislead the populace with cheap, tawdry and clownish stunts while they play hide and seek with the big boys of predatory wealth and rob the honest taxpayer by clandestine trades and grow rich on easy money."

SUPER WARSHIP SEEN AS RESULT OF NAVAL RACE

U. S. and Britain Expected To Co-operate in Production of New Sea Terrors If Japan JunksPact

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Certain naval quarters tonight suggested that when Japan junks the Washington naval treaty of 1922 a "naval race of technical improvements" may follow, resulting in new types of powerful warships which would make Germany's pocket battleships look like the galleons of old Spain.

The United States' plans, it was indicated, would be made in general co-operation with Great Britain, thereby conforming with the American hopes of an accord on general policies, an accord which, it was believed, probably will be suggested to Great Britain if there is no new naval treaty.

Such an accord would not bind either nation to concerted action on all types of ships, but would eliminate open competition between the two powers and keep both ahead of Japan, if possible, on all technical improvements.

The Japanese have indicated that they have plans ready for a surprise type of ship if a naval building race should start. The United States delegates do not appear disturbed by this since they are understood to believe the United States is in the best position to outrace anyone if necessary.

Conjectures regarding likely technical improvements range from bigger battleships and more powerful cruisers to fleets of enormous and powerful airplanes carried on extremely speedy and large aircraft-carriers with some surprise type of a new combination ship thrown in for good measure.

A denunciation of the Washington treaty would become effective December 31, 1936, and the three delegations to the present preliminary conversations between the United States, Great Britain and Japan have assumed that the treaty will be strictly observed until that date. The delegates have indicated that they are hopeful that in the intervening two years some mutual agreement would be obtained to prevent a construction race.

FRANCE WILL BUILD MORE BATTLESHIPS

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The intention of France "with eyes on the future" to strengthen her navy in step with the German and Italian fleets was announced today by Jacques Stern, reporting an increased navy budget to the chamber of deputies.

The proposed apropriation was 2,967,000,000 francs ($195,800,000,, which was 24,000,000 francs more than last year. The report explained that France in recent years had reduced naval expenditures.

At St. Nazaires today the keel was laid for the Strasbourg, sister ship to the 26,000-ton Dunquerque, designed to match Germany's new "pocket battleship" Deutschland.

UNION'S CHARGES OF DISCRIMINATION HEARD BY BOARD

Conflicting Testimony Taken on South Carolina Mills; Atlanta Case Slated for Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Conflicting views as to what constitutes discrimination were presented to the textile labor board today as it held its first formal hearing into charges southern textile mills failed to rehire union members when the plants reopened after the September strike.

The complaint involves the Clinton and Lydia cotton mills at Clinton, S. C. Tomorrow the board will hear similar charges against the Atlanta Woolen Mills, of Atlanta, Ga.

After the hearing today, the board announced that a written decision in the Clinton and Lydia cases probably will be rendered late this week.

Not Taken Back.

Union leaders at the two mills testified they and other active members of the United Textile Workers were not taken back when the mills reopened, but were told to come back later. They contended this meant dismissal, because, they said, when they were ready to go back they were told their jobs had been filled by "loyal workers."

W. J. Bailey, acting president of the two mills, admitted some of those most active in the strike were told to come back later in order that the mill might have time to investigate their cases.

He contended, however, this was not discrimination but a precaution, because during the strike electric current, shut off at the start of the walkout, was mysteriously cut on and there was considerable trespassing on mill property. Both plants supply current to their employes.

Truce Terms.

The strike truce called for all employes to be taken back as soon as possible provided they had not indulged in violence.

Peel said nearly 400 charges of violation of the strike truce have been lodged against southern mills. Most of the charges involve alleged discrimination against union leaders but a few involve alleged violations of the collective bargaining agreement.

The specific charge against the Clinton mill was that four union leaders, including Paul Dean, president of the Clinton local, and T. J. Broome, vice president, were not given back their jobs although approximately 400 other union employes returned to work.

Discrimination against 18 union leaders was charged to the Lydia mill where 280 employes went ou on strike.

A. L. Harrison, a leader in the Lydia local, said he was told he had got himself "in a mess" by joining the union and nothing could be done for him.

DISCRIMINATION CHARGES ARE HEARD AT SHANNON

SHANNON, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A hearing of complaints of discrimination brought by union officials against the Southern Brighton Mills as an aftermath of the September textile strike was begun here today by Aubrey F. Folts, of Chattanooga, as examiner for the textile relations board.

Only witnesses for the complainants were heard today and mill officials will tell their side of the story tomorrow. Witnesses today said approximately 200 former employes of the mills had not been re-employed since the settlement of the strike. Mill officials, authorities said, have taken the position that they feel the conduct of several employes during the strike justified any failure to re-employ them while others have not been given work because general conditions do not warrant taking on more employes.

Staff Members Resign From L. S. U. Paper

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Resignation of members of the staff of the Reveille, Louisiana State University student newspaper, was announced tonight after asserted insistence of the university that the campus publication should print nothing derogatory to Senator Huey P. Long.

Jesse H. Cutrer, of Kentwood, La., editor and business manager of the Reveille, announced his resignation and that of staff members of the publication as the paper was going to press because of what he said was individual unwillingness of the student journalists to submit to what he termed proposed "censorship" by a "faculty adviser."

He said the resignations followed a conference with Dr. James M. Smith, university president, and faculty members regarding the "censorship" issue which has been a torrid campus topic since Senator Long was angered two weeks ago by a criticism published in the Reveille of his making Abe Mickal, L. S. U. football star, a "state senator."

Car Forced Off Road, Three Drown in Ditch

BARDWELL, Ky., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The bodies of two women and a man were found in an automobile in four feet of water a mile from here today. Marks suggested their car was knocked off the road by another vehicle which drove off, leaving them to die in the creek.

The victims were Sam Graves, 48, Ballard county deputy sheriff; Mrs. Annie Cole, 20, and Mrs. Willie Ireland, 40, all of Wickliffe, Ky.

South's Pine Resources Exceed Expectations

U. S. Reports Pulp Supply of Southeast Georgia Alone Sufficient for Two-Thirds of Annual Newsprint Needs.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
Associated Press Science Editor.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The dreams of richness in southern forest resources more than come true in a government report just received here.

The report indicates, according to paper experts here, that there is enough pulpwood in the discarded pines of the naval tores industry in southeast Georgia alone to supply two-thirds of the annual newsprint needs of the United States.

The report is made by the southern forest survey staff, under Regional Director I. F. Eldredge, of the southern forest experiment station, New Orleans. It covers the supply of pulpwood in unit No. 1, which embraces 35 counties of Georgia.

This is part of a national survey authorized by congress. The Georgia unit is the first in a series of reports to cover southern timber resources from South Carolina to Texas, inclusive.

The Georgia figures are issued as "advance information" subject to correction. But they are said to be within three per cent of accuracy. The survey was started last December, so that its issuance now makes the information immediately available to the commercial scouts said to be cruising southern forests in larger numbers than ever before.

The report states that indications are for 29,703,000 cords of pulpwood from pine in unit No. 1 of Georgia, and 15,263,000 cords of pulping hardwood.

Believing that naval stores will continue to lay first claim to the trees producing turpentine, the survey further estimates the amount of pulpwood left in these trees for commercial use after they have been worked out for naval stores at 11,094,000 cords.

This is enough, together with the trees discarded each year by the naval stores industry for two-thirds of the annual newsprint needs of the United States, says Dr. Charles H. Herty director of the pulp and paper laboratory of the industrial committee of Savannah. It was the Savannah laboratory which showed that southern pines can make sulfite newsprint and all other grades of white paper.

"All of this source of supply," Dr. Herty said, "is within 100 miles of the seacoast. Not one tract there is more than five miles from an improved highway for trucking."

The New Orleans report is printed on white paper made from southern pines by the sulfite process. It is bound in kraft paper made from southern pines by the sulfite process.

PIERCE SENTENCED TO DIE IN CHAIR

Slayer of Stanley Dodge, Near Jonesboro, To Be Electrocuted Jan. 4.

JONESBORO, Ga., Nov. 26.—Victor Pierce, charged with the murder of Stanley Dodge last February, was sentenced to death Monday afternoon by a Clayton county jury which deliberated the case 40 minutes and returned a "guilty as charged" verdict after only one ballot.

The state charged that Pierce, with a companion, attempted to holdup Stanley Dodge at the Hollywood Villa on Jonesboro road, and shot Dodge to death when the latter resisted the robbery.

He was sentenced to die in the electric chair January 4, and a hearing for a new trial on motion of Pierce's attorneys was set for December 15 by Judge James C. Davis.

The pretty young widow of Stanley Dodge, a witness to the slaying of the husband to whom she had been married only a few weeks, positively identified Pierce as Dodge's slayer, as did Sammy Samples, 19, an employe of the roadhouse.

Pierce admitted shooting the roadhouse proprietor because he said Dodge shot at him first and he was forced to kill to save his own life. Pierce was wounded twice in the affray, but escaped. He was caught later and escaped from Fulton tower, as did his companion in the fatal robbery attempt, Jack Gibson, who was recaptured and sentenced to life. Pierce was arrested a few weeks ago in Texas and was brought back for trial.

Prosecutor Claude Smith and Eldon Haldane, Atlanta attorney, demanded the death sentence for Pierce. The slayer was defended by O. J. Coogler, of Jonesboro.

Atlanta Team-of-Four Wins Bridge Tourney

The Atlanta team of Mrs. Humphrey Wagar, John Tyner, Fred Levy and Whitner Cary Monday was in possession of the southeastern team-of-four championship after defeating another Atlanta team composed of Mrs. Spotswood Grant, Henry Chanin, John Hardisty and Bill Dickey in the final round of the championship tournament at the Piedmont hotel.

In winning the title the Wagar-Tyner-Levy-Cary combination overcame a 580-point lead in the last 16 boards of the 64-board final match and won by a margin of 1,790 points.

As the match drew near its conclusion it appeared that extra boards might be needed because the rules provide that one team must be 750 or more points ahead to be declared the winner but the winning quartet maintained a spurt down to the finish and eliminated the extra board necessity.

3 Prisoners Captured, 3 Others Still Sought

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Nov. 26.—(AP) Six prisoners made a spectacular escape from the Madison county jail here this afternoon, but within four hours three of them had been recaptured by a deputy sheriff and an attorney as they drove into a Pulaski, Tenn., filling station in an automobile taken from a Huntsville man.

Sheriff L. A. Hagan, of Giles county (Pulaski) Tenn., telephoned authorities here that Deputy Sheriff W. C. Foster and William May, attorney, scouting for the escaped men, had captured the heavily armed trio without a shot being fired.

Huntsville officers were dispatched to Pulaski to return the men while deputies and all available city patrolmen scouted near-by sections for traces of the three other escapes, who overpowered a jailer and a trusty and locked them in a cell before arming themselves from the jail arsenal.

DIVINITY STUDENT KILLS WIFE, PRIEST

Trio Had Been Drinking in Hotel Room Before Double Slaying.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A man identified as a New Jersey priest and a honeymooning bride from Hollywood were shot to death today in the cleric's hotel room by the woman's husband, a former Bible school student.

All had been drinking heavily, Assistant Attorney Saul Price said.

The slain man, Price said, was the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, 40, a Catholic priest at the Morris Hall Home for the Aged at Lawrenceville, N. J.

The bride was the former Ruth Tiles, 17. She had sought a career in the movies under the name of Ruth Mary Armstrong.

Her husband, Joseph L. Steinmetz, 22, was found beside the bodies, collapsed. Price said he admitted the slayings. He will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of homicide.

Admits Shooting.

The district attorney's aid said Steinmetz told him:

"The priest asked my wife down to his room to hear a confession . . . I followed them . . . my mind was in a whirl . . . and I shot them."

Steinmetz came to the United States in 1929 from Bucharest with his mother, who lives in Brooklyn. He met Miss Armstrong on the west coast while he was studying for the ministry at the Bible Institute in Los Angeles.

They were married November 10 in Tia Juana and came to New York on their honeymoon several days ago.

Assistant District Attorney Price, who assumed charge of the case, announced these details:

"Steinmetz and his wife registered in New York at the Knights of Columbus hotel. Either last Friday or Saturday, Steinmetz met the priest in the lobby. They spoke to each other and conversed on several occasions thereafter.

Heavy Drinking.

"Today, when Mr. and Mrs. Steinmetz went down to breakfast they met the priest and asked him up to their room. They had several drinks and talked for a couple of hours. In the course of this talk, Mrs. Steinmetz chanced to remark that she was reared a Catholic.

"Rev. Leonard asked Steinmetz and his wife to lunch with him. Around 12 noon, they went to a restaurant near the hotel, where they had several drinks, ending with a tomato juice cocktail. Then they returned to the Steinmetz' room. The priest went out and returned with a bottle of liquor and all drank some more.

"Steinmetz said he felt tired and the priest suggested he lay down for a while. This Steinmetz did and in a few minutes he heard the priest say to his wife: 'Why don't you come down-

Montgomery Sheriff Resigns Under Fire

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Sheriff Sam D. Stearns, of Montgomery county, tonight tendered his resignation, effective at midnight November 30, to Governor B. M. Miller, who Saturday ordered impeachment proceedings instituted against the sheriff for willful neglect of duty and intemperance.

The resignation was delivered to the governor by Judge Walter B. Jones, of Montgomery circuit court, at 5 p. m. and the governor accepted it without comment, later announcing that he would name a successor between now and Saturday.

Sheriff Stearns, who conferred with the governor at noon today, denied the charge contained in the governor's letter ordering the impeachment proceedings that he was "drunk" last week-end when the governor's secretary was unable to locate rim and deliver the governor's orders for a "dry up" campaign against beer and liquor dealers in the state capital.

POLICE DECLARE EXPOSURE CAUSE OF THREE DEATHS

Also Deny Finding Connection Between Slaying of Man and Woman and Death of Three Girls.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 26.—(AP) Major Cecil M. Wilhelm, deputy superintendent of state police, said tonight "As far as we are concerned" the death of a man and woman in Duncansville was "murder and suicide" and three girls, whose bodies were found in the mountains near Carlisle, died from exposure.

Commenting on published reports that state police had swerved to a theory that the man and woman in the Duncansville case and the three children were members of a family that had been slain, Wilhelm said state police will not change their opinions until "doctors tell us differently."

Members of the Carlisle detail also denied they were considering the theory that the five persons were members of one family that had been slain.

Major Wilhelm said: "We have the best doctors in this part of the country working on the case and we are replying on them to tell us what caused the children's deaths."

Meanwhile, John Ellwood Jones, of Cleveland, was closeted with troopers at Carlisle repeating his story that he saw the three children with a woman and a man in a sedan, being driven east on a detour near Lewistown. He identified the bodies in the morgue as those of the children he saw in the car.

At the same time he said he had information that a "society of New York" brands children with the "sign of the cross." Haegele expressed the opinion the mark was "made deliberately" and said it was not disclosed until the death masks were made.

The scar, on the forehead of the child who is designated as being between the ages of the two others, was not discernible except through a magnifying glass.

A Nev. York to Harrisburg bus driver declared the woman found slain in a railway waiting booth rode from New York with him last Wednesday and accompanied the girls.

A woman told Philadelphia police, they said, that she recognized the dead girls through pictures as the "same ones I saw in the restaurant" in North Philadelphia on Sunday night, November 18. A man and a woman accompanied them and one of the girls told her they were from California.

Bus Driver's Story.

Boston police said Earl Sylvester, bus driver, reported carrying a woman and three girls to New York Wednesday. He said the woman was about 30 and wore a black coat and that one of the children was a blonde and wore a white dress with red dots. This corresponded with the dress one of the dead children wore, police pointed out.

J. Price, Pittsburgh bus station steward, reported a woman and three children continued the journey from Harrisburg to Cresson, a mountain resort nine miles west of Duncansville.

B. A. Cook, of Camp Hill, said he recalled seeing three little girls near Harrisburg last Thursday "thumbing" their way to Carlisle.

The coats worn by the girls were made by the H. & J. Block Company, garment manufacturers, of New York, police announced tonight.

Jesse Block, partner in the concern, said the NRA labels were sewn in the coats not earlier than September 5 of this year. A thorough check of 5,000 sales records will be made, he said.

Block was of the opinion that the coats can be traced definitely to a retail outlet. He said most of his company's stock was purchased by stores outside of the New York area.

Ickes Asks for Bids On Techwood Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Bids for the first federal low-cost housing project, the $2,700,000 Techwood in Atlanta, were asked today by Secretary Ickes, the public works administrator.

Advertisements were ordered displayed on bulletin boards and in newspapers of the Georgia city.

Replacing 13 blocks of slum area, Techwood will house 603 families in apartments and row-houses and 318 students in a dormitory. The project is in the area adjacent to Georgia Tech and will replace an objectionable section of inferior housing which has been the source of civic dissatisfaction.

Demolition of a slum area now is under way in Atlanta for another PWA housing enterprise, the $2,100,000 university project for negroes. It was said today bids will be asked for this construction when architects complete plans.

Martin Insull's Trial Set for December 3

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Martin J. Insull, pleased by the acquittal of his brother, Samuel, in federal court Saturday, came to court himself today to see criminal charges against him postponed until December 3.

That date had previously been agreed upon by Prosecutors John O'Hora and Earle C. Hurley who, along with defense attorneys, expected Samuel's trial to run longer than it did.

'Sea Serpent's' Remains Identified as Shark

NANIMO, B. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The sea serpent was only a shark after all.

Dr. W. A. Clemens, director of bilogical station here, today positively identified the remains of a sea monster found on Herny island, south of Prince Rupert, B. C., as those of a basking shark. He said the mammal is frequently found in northern waters.

The discovery last week of the carcass by H. Sundstrom, a fisherman, led British Columbians to believe that perhaps it was the remains of one of the three serpent-like creatures which scores of observers have reported seeing in British Columbia waters.

F. D. R. CENSURES MOFFETT, ICKES FOR HOUSING RIFT

FHA Administrator Will Meet President Thursday for Discussion of Public Dispute.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Further repercussions of a publicly aired difference between Secretary Ickes and James A. Moffett, housing administrator, were indicated today as a Thanksgiving Day conference was arranged for the latter with President Roosevelt.

While the capital speculated on what might or might not happen, these points were added to the discussion:

Definite word that President Roosevelt had expressed his displeasure to both Ickes and Moffett over the public discussion of federal as against private housing;

An indication that the national emergency council shortly may make some recommendation as to the merging, or at least co-ordination, of the 54 agencies now dealing with housing;

Speculation that should the PWA proposal to federally finance the building of low-cost homes be carried out, Moffett might resign.

Neither Ickes nor Moffett had any comment on the housing question today. Last Thursday Ickes suggested that since private capital did not seem ready to do the job, the government should build homes at a three per cent interest charge. On Friday Moffett said this would wreck the national housing act. On Saturday both conferred at the White House after telephone conversations with the president. A joint statement was issued saying no differences existed between them.

The exact word of Mr. Roosevelt in his calls from Warm Springs were not recorded, but it was said reliably today that he had not patted either on the back for their earlier clashing statements.

Those close to the situation regarded it as certain that some arrangement would be developed to prevent duplication of effort and avoid such differing statements in the future.

Just what the final arrangement will be no one would venture, but it was pointed that certainly closer co-operation would be sought between the 13 agencies dealing directly with housing the population and 41 others having to do with one or another sort of housing.

One of Moffett's objections to the Ickes plan for building and selling low-cost homes is that it would put the government directly into competition with private business.

Puryear Found Guilty Of 2d Degree Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A criminal court jury tonight found Stanley A. Puryear guilty of second degree murder and recommended a sentence of 15 years in the state penitentiary.

Defense Counsel Galloway and Weinstein filed a motion for new trial, which will be heard December 15 by Judge Phil Wallace.

Assistant District Attorney-General Will Gerber said Puryear would remain at liberty under bond pending hearing of the motion. The defendant has been free under bonds totaling $30,000 almost two years.

GRADUAL CUTTING OF 'NORMAL' COSTS KEYNOTE OF PLAN

MEANS ARE SOUGHT TO BLOCK BONUS

Leaders Hopeful No New Tax Bill Will Be Required If Bonus Issue Can Be Compromised.

By FREDERICK A. STORM.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 26.—(UP)—A "safe and sane" legislative program for 1935, designed primarily to keep normal government expenditures within the income, was outlined to the New Deal's chief congressional lieutenants today by President Roosevelt.

For more than four hours, Mr. Roosevelt sat around the conference table with Senators Joe T. Robinson, majority leader, and Pat Harrison, chairman of the powerful senate finance committee, exploring the entire picture. When all was said and done, it was clearly indicated that the entire program pointed to a tapering off of the governmental deficit as a prime objective.

To Renew Talk Today.

Robinson, who explained that he would see the president again tomorrow to continue the discussions, issued a formal statement that revealed a decision to stand as nearly as possible on present taxes and an effort to overcome the strong sentiment that now prevails in congressional quarters for immediate cash payment of the soldier bonus, amounting to more than $2,000,000,000.

"My conference with the president has not been concluded," Robinson said. "He asked me to remain over and see him in the morning after which I will leave for Little Rock, Ark., my home.

"I can only add that we are discussing the general conditions that prevail and that we also are considering some measures relating to important subjects. I have no detailed statement to make at this time on prospective legislation.

To Cut Spending.

"It is believed however that expenditures for normal government purposes will be kept well within the income, that is the revenues, and that it is not possible yet to decide what further arrangements are necessary respecting further employment and relief.

"The bonus was not discussed in any detail. Mention of the subject was made but no conclusion was reached. There was nothing to indicate any plans for financing the bonus, nor do I know of any plans that are in contemplation."

At this point Robinson was asked to set forth his views concerning the taxing situation for 1935, and he replied:

"I do not anticipate that an effort will be made to make substantial increases in existing taxes or to impose substantial new taxes. I take this attitude as the result of my studies and the information I have at hand."

In further amplification of his position he mentioned, however, that it was contingent on further developments.

Relief Unsettled.

While Robinson emphasized that the matter of relief was yet to be threshed out, perhaps tomorrow, when he meets Mr. Roosevelt in the study at the Little White House, other close administration friends pointed out that they expected Mr. Roosevelt to adhere closely to his well-defined policy that "permits no one to starve" when he makes up next year's estimates.

They agreed, nevertheless, that it would be reasonably conservative and

'Treat 'Em Rough' Command Given to New York Police

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—New York's two-fisted police commissioner, Lewis J. Valentine, laid down a "treat 'em rough" policy today.

"The sky is the limit" on thugs and gorillas and assassins, he declared, urging his men to get there first with the most bullets.

"Let the crook be the one carried away in the box, not the cop."

Valentine, who was once demoted from inspector to captain because his raids on gambling games aroused the ire of politicians, said later he wanted to impress upon his men that they need have no fear of political reprisals.

"In making this statement," he said, "I appreciate that the men at my command have intelligence enough to know how far they can go.

"I won't stand for police brutality in any sense of the word. But the first law of nature is self-preservation. I expect my men to defend themselves."

From his aides it became known that there is a legend in the underworld to the effect that policemen are required to count 10 before shooting.

"This legend," they said, "probably accounts for most of the so-called 'bravery' among gunmen."

Valentine was patently aroused at the lineup when there came before his view a velvet-collared, sleek-haired man accused of complicity in a murder.

"Look at him, the best dressed man in this room," said the commissioner.

The suspect, who had a record of 18 arrests but no convictions, looked as if "he had just stepped out of a bandbox," he added.

"He doesn't work and he doesn't know what work is. When you get up against men like him don't hesitate. I don't want these men coming in here looking as if they had just left a barber chair.

"I want you to understand you'll be supported no matter what you do, provided you are justified.

"Take this message back to your associates: This town is no place for racketeers, thugs and criminals. In the last 10 days three honest merchants have been killed by quick-trigger men.

"I shall protect you. The district attorneys will protect you. Bring these known criminals in mussed up."

Valentine, who became head of the force last September, made it plain that police were to guard carefully against harming innocent persons. His lecture was concerned solely with known gunmen and mayhem artists, he said.

FRENCH WITHDRAW FROM SAAR ISSUE

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Territory, Nov. 26.—(AP)—France, it was stated tonight in informed quarters, has virtually withdrawn from the Saar plebiscite fight, making a large nazi victory probable in January.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval and Chancellor Hitler, said an unconfirmed report, have reached an understanding under which France agrees not to press the anti-nazi cause and to talk no more about sending the French army into the Saar.

In return, according to this report, the nazis have agreed to negotiate a financial settlement for the Saar mines as soon as possible.

Laval, it was said, has indicated both to Berlin authorities and to anti-nazis in the Saar that he is unwilling to continue the battle in favor of a status quo, which would leave the Saar under League of Nations jurisdiction, waged by his predecessor, the late Louis Barthou.

Barthou was the mouthpiece for anti-nazis at Geneva in their effort to obtain if possible a district or two for France and prevent Hitler from obtaining an overwhelming majority in the plebiscite.

Laval, more interested in settling the financial problems now being discussed at Rome, was not expected to give his active support to a request of the anti-nazis that the League council grant the right to hold a second plebiscite "after Hitler is gone" should the Saar vote in January to continue indefinitely under the League.

Robles Kidnap Suspect Held for Grand Jury

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Oscar H. Robson, accused of sending extortion notes in the kidnaping of 6-year-old June Robles, pleaded not guilty at his preliminary hearing today but was ordered held for grand jury investigation.

Fernando Robles, father of the child kept for three weeks last spring in a desert "grave" near Tucson, identified ransom notes received while his daughter was missing.

A government witness testified the missives and samples of Robson's handwriting "were written by the same person."

Denying a defense motion to dismiss the charges, United States Commissioner Daniel Hurley reduced Robson's bail from $100,000 to $50,000 at the suggestion of Clifton Mathews, United States district attorney.

EYE, EAR, NOSE, THROAT CLUB HEARS SAMUELS

Dr. Barnard Samuels, professor of eye at Cornell medical school and visiting chief surgeon and pathologist to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, and E. B. Burchell, in charge of the pathological laboratory at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, were guest speakers at the winter meeting of the Georgia Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Club at the Academy of Medicine Monday night.

Speaking on the subject "Sympathetic Opthalmia," Dr. Samuels discussed the frequency of the sympathetic manifestation and cautioned the doctors on the necessity for close observation of patients who have suffered eye injury lest the remaining eye become impaired.

Mr. Burchell, who is well-known in medical and scientific circles in both America and Europe for his original work on the temporal bone and accessory sinuses, confined his lecture to a technical discussion of these parts of the anatomy.

Midget Sues New Yorker For Breach of Promise

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—One of the smallest of the Chicago fair midgets brought a full-sized $100,000 heart balm action into the supreme court today against a New York restaurant man who is 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

The fair Lilliputian, Miss Anne Sutton, who exhibited herself at Chicago last summer, gave her specifications in the complaint as:

Defendant in the action is Andrew Murphy Jr., identified as proprietor of Andy Murphy's bar and grill which is located on Eighth avenue in the center of New York's "Little Lilliputia."

Murphy courted her assiduously, said Miss Sutton; took her out four and five times a week; urged her to break with other suitors; begged her to marry him.

"It's all bunk," said Murphy. "I met the girl here in the place, but I never went out with her."

SECRETARY, GEMS SOUGHT IN KILLING

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 26.—(AP) The "barrel slaying" of a Brooklyn, N. Y., jewelry auctioneer tonight led authorities on a widespread search for the victim's secretary and a package reported to contain $20,000 worth of diamonds.

The killing, supposedly committed in the Merz jewelry shop here, came to light today when the nude body of the slain man, Alvin Brunner, was found, stuffed into a barrel, in a Cincinnati garage. He had been shot in the head.

A Columbus laundry mark, scrawled upon a pillow case found in the barrel, and a piece of wrapping tape bearing the address of a Columbus jeweler, led authorities to this city, where they picked up shreds of information that led them to order the search for J. S. Berman, identified as Brunner's secretary.

Police officials expressed a hope Berman, if located, could clear up the mystery, and Detective Chief Lugene Ebright said police throughout Ohio have been asked to search for him.

Detective Otto Kaffits disclosed that a woman, whose name he refused to divulge, saw a man she identified as Berman, strap a barrel on the rear of Brunner's automobile, parked in the rear of the jewelry store, Sunday noon.

Brunner, police said, apparently was killed without warning. The bullet hole in his head indicated he was shot from behind. A blood stain on the mattress in the Merz store indicated the man lay there for a time after he was shot. A barrel missing from a nearby restaurant indicated the body had been left on the bed while the slayer developed a plan for ridding himself of it.

In the barrel with the corpse when found in Cincinnati were a blood stained pillow and sheet, and the piece of wrapping tape, which bore an address here at which the Merz's formerly lived.

Revolutionary Plot Is Foiled in Peru

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The police and the army foiled a revolutionary plot apparently well planned and set for last night, the government announced today.

A little after dusk, the interior department announced, members of the police post near the Chosica-Lima highway noticed a suspicious gathering of people constantly augmented by new arrivals in various types of vehicles.

All were carrying portable bags and cases.

The commanding sergeant warned his superiors who immediately dispatched troops to the scene. The plotters' surrender was easily accomplished, the announcement said, but a few escaped. About 200 were arrested.

A CEREAL THAT HAS MADE HISTORY

When our company introduced a new kind of cereal, 28 years ago, we were unconsciously changing the breakfast habits of the nation. Kellogg's Corn Flakes have become the most popular ready-to-eat cereal in the world.

We buy more than 7,000,000 bushels of high-grade corn a year. It is estimated that since Kellogg's Corn Flakes were first made, we have used as much corn as could be grown in a year on 3,500,000 acres of land.

At the same time Kellogg's Corn Flakes have created uses for vast quantities of other farm products. With the 12,000,000 servings of Kellogg's eaten every day, 2,500,000 quarts of milk and cream are consumed. And countless tons of fruit, sugar and honey are daily accompaniments to Kellogg breakfasts.

When you eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes, you enjoy flavor and crispness that no other cereal has ever successfully imitated. You get big value at low cost. And you save the time and labor of cooking.

The original Corn Flakes have always been the best. Be sure you ask for Kellogg's.

No Feast is Complete without CRANBERRIES

What does Thanksgiving mean to the lover of good food? Turkey certainly. Cranberries most emphatically.

Some like the luscious whole or stewed cranberry sauce, made in 10 minutes. To make it right use this recipe.

"10-Minute" Cranberry Sauce (Stewed Cranberries)

Boil 2 cups of water and 1½ to 2 cups of sugar together 5 minutes, then add 4 cups Eatmor Cranberries. Boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in the vessel undisturbed until cool.

For those who like their cranberry sauce strained and in jelly mold form, follow this recipe—

JELLIED CRANBERRY SAUCE
4 cups cranberries 2 cups water 2 cups granulated sugar

Boil cranberries with water until berries stop popping. Strain through fine sieve; add sugar and stir; then boil rapidly for 8 to 10 minutes—or until a drop jells on a cold plate. Turn at once into a wet mold; and cool.

Birthday Party Held by Quality Service

Approximately 350 Quality Service Store members in Atlanta, together with their wives, food manufacturers and representatives, attended the fourth anniversary Q. S. S. and Atlanta Savings Stores banquet and celebration on the Ansley Roof Thursday night. The group pictured at the speakers' table included E. D. Rivers, speaker of the house of representatives, speaker of the evening, and Gabe Cohen, who served as toastmaster. The membership in Atlanta now numbers more than 175 stores.

SIMMONS DISCUSSES NEW SALARY SYSTEM

Revision of the salary system for five major departments of Fulton county so that a certain percentage of fees collected shall be allocated in a lump sum for the conduct of those departments is in no sense institution of a "modified fee system," J. Walton Simmons, clerk of Fulton county court and proponent of the plan, told officers of the Atlanta League of Women Voters Monday.

Simmons explained the move as an effort on his part to place attaches of the various departments directly under the supervision of the department head, to allow the department head to fix salaries and to conduct the office for which he is responsible and to let employes know "their allegiance and loyalty belong to the department head and him only."

Under the present system, inaugurated about 10 years ago on abolition of the former fee system, the Fulton county commission fixes all salaries of department heads and employes on recommendation of the department heads. Fees are collected as formerly, but all employes are on what is termed a salary system.

The Simmons proposal would allow each department head a lump sum of money each year, a certain percentage of fees collected, to conduct his department as he sees fit with no responsibility to the commission or any other body.

"It is unfortunate that this proposal has been called a 'modified fee system'," Simmons told league officers. "It is not that. In fact it is only a modified salary system, which would give department heads, who now are morally, financially and legally responsible for the conduct of the various divisions, complete control over their respective departments and over their employes.

"When emergencies arise in the various departments under the present plan, the department head would be able to put on the extra help without delay."

3 CAROLINA SLAYERS LOST COURT APPEAL

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 26.—(AP) The South Carolina supreme court closed legal doors today against the pleas of three white men sentenced to be electrocuted for murder and left executive clemency as their last resort.

By the action of the court in refusing to rehear the appeal of Victor Rook, Roy Lawson and J. H. McIntire, of Spartanburg county, December 21 was definitely set as their death date.

Paris Police Seize 438 In 'Purification' Drive

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Hundreds of Parisians obeyed the command "Hands up!" as the police "purification" of the city continued tonight with renewed raids upon bars, cafes and dance halls.

Flying squadrons of police cruising in motorbuses poured into drinking and dancing establishments, searching men for weapons and scanning their identification papers.

Twenty-two suspects were seized, bringing the total of arrests to 438 in three nights. Many of them were foreigners, mostly held for infraction of expulsion orders.

OBLIGING RECORDER GIVES WOMAN TERM SHE ASKS HIM FOR

Recorder John L. Cone was in an accommodating mood Monday afternoon at his session of court. He did everything Lillie Bailey, of 698 Cascade avenue, asked of him, and more.

The woman had been convicted of fighting with another woman in the street. Judge Cone dismissed charges against the second woman and said he would suspend sentence on Lillie Bailey. She objected because the other woman was not sentenced also and Cone fined her $5.

"Why don't you make it ten?" she said. The recorder immediately did and Lillie Bailey started back to a seat in the courtroom.

"Go to hell," she muttered.

"Thirty days," said Judge Cone. She will be taken to the stockade today to spend a month.

FURNITURE STORE SAFE YIELDS NO VALUABLES

Yeggs who cracked the safe of the Mather Brothers Furniture store at 120 Whitehall street Sunday night or Monday morning failed to open the money box and got nothing for their trouble, R. C. Mather, manager of the business, told police.

Patrolman W. H. Gantt discovered the rear door of the store broken open early Monday morning and he and other officers searched the place but found no one. The safe had been blown open but the inside strongbox was intact. Mather told the officers only a small amount of cash was in the safe.

Detectives Monday also were investigating the robbery of the safe of the Trammell Scott sporting goods store at 66 North Broad street. Cracksmen got $300 in cash and 25 rifles and shotguns valued at about $1,500, it was discovered Sunday night. Part of the cash was money taken in on the sale of football tickets to the Boys' High-Tech High game last Saturday.

Robinson, Turman Promoted By Trust Company of Georgia

The election of James D. Robinson Jr. as vice president, in charge of the investment department, and Moses C. Turman as assistant treasurer in the commercial banking department of the Trust Company of Georgia, was announced Monday by Thomas K. Glenn, president of the company. Both are widely known and popular young Atlantans.

Mr. Glenn, in announcing their election, said: "It is especially gratifying that Mr. Robinson and Mr. Turman assume their enlarged responsibilities after a long period of useful service and training with our company. Their advancement likewise makes possible the promotion of other members of our staff."

Mr. Robinson, a member of one of Atlanta's oldest and most prominent families, is a grandson of the late Captain James W. English, one of the city's pioneer citizens, and is the son of James D. Robinson, executive vice president of the First National bank. Educated in Atlanta's schools, he subsequently attended the Virginia Military Institute and the Harvard School of Business Administration. In 1926 he entered the investment banking field and entered the employ of the Trust Company of Georgia in 1929. He is widely known as one of Atlanta's outstanding younger business leaders. Mr. Robinson was married to Miss Josephine Crawford at a brilliant ceremony early in this year.

Mr. Turman came to Atlanta in 1921 and entered the employ of the Lowry National bank, and has been connected continuously with that bank and its successor institutions. A native of Canon, Ga., Mr. Turman attended Piedmont College at Demorest before entering the banking business, and as head teller of the Trust Company of Georgia's banking department he has been one of the well-known younger banking figures of the city.

The Trust Company of Georgia is one of the oldest financial institutions of the state. Established in 1891, its business was primarily in the trust and investment fields until it established an active commercial banking department in 1933. Mr. Glenn, in his announcement, indicated that the promotion of Mr. Robinson and Mr. Turman was made possible by the increase of both the banking and investment business of the company.

The directors of the Trust Company of Georgia are: Ivan Allen, J. Bulow Campbell, C. Howard Candler, William J. Davis, J. G. Dodson, Thomas K. Glenn, John N. Goddard, John W. Grant Jr., Walter C. Hill, Harold Hirsch, W. R. Prescott, Walter H. Rich, Robert Strickland, Sam Tate, Charles A. Wickersham, Mell R. Wilkinson and Ernest Woodruff.

The officers of the company are: Thomas K. Glenn, president; Robert Strickland, executive vice president; Domeron Black, vice president, secretary and treasurer; Lewis L. Davis, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

Banking Department—William S. Woods, assistant vice president; Douglas M. Robertson, assistant vice president; Augustus H. Stevens, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer; Moses C. Turman, assistant treasurer.

Mortgage Loan Department—George L. Word, manager; Vernon A. Wooten, assistant manager.

Office Ready to Start Collection of Beer Tax

The Georgia office of the internal revenue department has been formally notified that the federal court has withdrawn an injunction against the collection of the $1,000 excise tax on beer dealers and that the office is ready to act, Frank H. Boyce, assistant to Collector W. E. Page, said Monday.

Boyce did not say when the collection would be started except to say that the office was ready to start.

The court of appeals set aside the conviction and fine of J. D. Lewis who was assessed a levy of $100 after he had been arrested transporting beer. The court pointed out that Lewis had proved that it was an interstate shipment not destined to stop in Georgia. Lewis' attorneys contended they had asked Judge James Maddox, who presided over the trial in Walker county, to charge that interstate transportation shown by bills of lading was legal but the judge did not include it in the charge.

ROGERS SPEAKS HERE OF MOTOR INDUSTRY

Asserting that the motor vehicle industry now employes a larger personnel than any other industry, Ted V. Rogers, president of the American Trucking Association and head of the industry's code authority, said Monday that motor transportation is and will continue to be one of the most important factors in American life.

Mr. Rogers spoke before the meeting of the Georgia Motor Vehicle Association in session at the Henry Grady hotel.

Mr. Rogers praised the action of Governor Talmadge in providing a low registration fee for trucks in Georgia and said that the state generally is doing much to promote the industry.

Other speakers on the program included Jack Taylor, of Augusta, president of the Georgia association, and W. L. Mitchell, state NRA compliance executive.

TALMADGE ATTACKS BANKHEAD BILL AGAIN

A new attack on the Bankhead bill was made Monday by Governor Eugene Talmadge, who said that "not only is it hurting thousands of citizens in America, but this year for the first time in history more cotton was made abroad than we made in America.

"If this keeps up a few more years, we will lose our foreign trade on cotton," he added.

The governor's views were expressed in an article he wrote for the Statesman, of which he is associate editor.

"I cannot see any good from this law. It carries a processing tax of 4 1-4 cents per pound on cotton grown in excess of the allotment.

"I receive letters every day from farmers over the state who are on the verge of starvation on account of limiting them to too little cotton to support their families."

He advised that the bill be studied "closely," and said it was to be voted on next month.

In the same article, the governor discussed his hunting trip to the Georgia coast last week-end and commented that the train on which he rode was crowded, as a result of "recent changes in passenger rates." He said the "lower passenger rate is putting more people back on the trains." He spoke of visiting the cemetery at 142-year-old Midway church, in Liberty county, and said "anyone taking this trip on the coastal highway will certainly miss something if they don't stop at Midway church and go into the building, and also the cemetery."

MEETING OPENED HERE BY OFFICIALS OF NRA

Atlanta's NRA regional headquarters leads the nation in the new NRA set-up of decentralized administration by regional councils as the three-day meeting of administrative officials opened Monday morning at the Piedmont hotel. Atlanta takes the role of a testing ground as the first of the ten regional councils to be set up in various parts of the United States.

Speedier and more efficient code enforcement and quicker prosecution of violations is the object of the decentralization of administration. The regional councils will consist of a regional director at the head of a regional council, composed of a representative of labor, a representative of industry and an attorney on the staff of the litigation division, who will probably act as chairman of the council.

W. L. Mitchell, Georgia NRA compliance director, has been named regional director of the new set-up, including the states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana. Industry will be represented on the council by Earl W. Dahlberg, a former Georgian who has been serving as NRA deputy administrator in Washington for the last several months. The other two members of the council had not been named Monday night.

State and local compliance offices will continue to function, it is stated, but when unable to make adjustments or enforce compliance, the case will be turned over to the regional director. If he is unable to bring about a satisfactory conclusion to the case, it will be turned directly over to the regional council, which holds all the power previously possessed only by the national NRA council. Much speedier conclusion of cases is expected by the new plan, according to NRA officials.

Barnett Again Working 'Across From Capitol'

Captain J. W. Barnett, of Athens, is established "across the street" from the state capitol once more. But he's not in the state highway department from which he was ousted more than a year ago by Governor Talmadge. He is at the Fulton tower, where he is serving as supervising engineer for the public works administration, which furnished the funds for the tower remodeling.

The captain reported that he was more than satisfied with his present connection and said he had no desire ever to return to the highway board.

Three Minute Relief From Your Headache

When you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B. C.," a reliable, pleasant-to-take remedy. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia; for reducing fever and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—(adv.)

ATLANTA, GA., NOV. 27, 1934.

A CHALLENGE TO THE POLICE

The sudden increase during the past week of safecrackings, ride-and-rob outrages and other crimes of violence constitutes a challenge that the police of Atlanta should meet with a determined drive against criminals of every type.

Bold and confident burglars have dynamited safe after safe in the business heart of the city, some in large mercantile establishments and others in small, conspicuously located stores. The indifference of the criminals to the police is evidenced by the fact that some of the safes blown open have stood only a few feet from the entrances of small business houses located on brightly lighted streets.

Instead of getting better, the ride-and-rob situation seems to be growing worse. The criminals who resort to this method of robbing their victims formerly restricted their attacks to men. Now they are holding up women and young people. Within the past week one of the city's best-known matrons was forced to drive her car to a lonely spot and there robbed and brutally thrust from her car, after her shoes had been taken from her. Young couples in their 'teens have been taken long distances into the country and made to walk home late in the night.

Earlier during the year the police by a concentrated drive nipped in the bud an epidemic of ride-and-rob crimes. They have frequently in the past gone after those who have indulged in safe-cracking in a manner that brought at least temporary relief from such outrages.

What has been done before can be done better now because the police department is better organized and much of the deadwood on the force has been eliminated.

The depredations of the past week are a challenge to Chief Sturdivant to order a round-up of criminals that will put an end to the increased threat to the safety of the people of the city that comes just as the holiday shopping season opens.

THE INSULL DECISION

The acquittal of Samuel Insull, after but brief consideration of the evidence by the jury, is not surprising. It has been felt that there was little probability of a verdict of guilty, although there was strong belief the case would end with a hopelessly deadlocked jury.

Insull did no worse than hundreds of other financiers, either unwise or unscrupulous, although the losses incurred in the collapse of his stocks were larger than those registered in the downfall of other holding companies. He had in his favor his advanced age, a life marked by many and large contributions to public funds and a career that started from the bottom in the employment of Thomas A. Edison.

Insull may or may not be legally guilty of squandering the huge sums of trusting investors. Certain it is that widespread distress and deprivation followed the faith of thousands of investors in the word of a man who was one of the outstanding leaders of the era of unsound and destructive financial trading, during which great holding company structures were built on foundations of sand, and profitable concerns were looted of their earnings in order that misleading dividends could be declared by corporations little more than dummies.

Of the folly, whether criminal or not, of Insull and the other builders of the financial paper houses that looted billions of dollars from the investors of America there can be no question. But when it comes to sending an aged man to prison as the sole representative of a large group who followed the same tactics, the average American jury can be counted on to take the same view as did the one that acquitted Insull in the trial of the first charges against him.

Should the government elect to bring him to trial on other charges, the prosecution will again face what is tantamount to a stacked deck, with the aces of public sympathy for an aged man, with a good record of public service, being singled out of the pack as the only victim of an era of inexcusable financial folly.

SOUTH LEADS IN HOMESTEADS

Two major reasons account for the fact that a large majority of the 50 new rural-industrial homesteads listed by FERA officials as having been tentatively approved are located in the southern states. Practically all of the states in this section are included in the list, with Texas and Florida having five each and Georgia four.

The first of these considerations is the combination of soil and climatic advantages enjoyed by the rural dwellers of this section, as compared with those in other sections of equal scope in the country. Here the farmer does not have to "dig in" during the long winter months, but can go about his farm duties during every season of the year. His cost of feed for his stock and upkeep of his lands is far lower than in the colder sections, and he has to spend less for fuel, food and clothing from October to April.

The same advantage applies to the industrial worker in small southern communities. Not only are his expenses less but he can obtain health-building outdoor exercise the year around as a relief from the indoor confinement faced by the average industrial worker.

Undoubtedly the FERA officials were further influenced in locating so many of the new homesteads in the south because of the fact that, despite the natural advantages enjoyed by our people, agriculture in this section is far behind that of other sections in the adoption of modern methods, while industry has just begun to gain a foothold.

Our failure to live up to the natural advantages with which we are blessed is to be attributed to the stultifying effect of the one-crop system under which the majority of southern farmers raised cotton and little else. The reign of cotton began to crumble with the coming of the boll weevil, but the average southern farmer has not yet caught up with those of other sections in following diversification and live-at-home programs of production.

Relief Administrator Hopkins, in commenting upon the purpose of the government-developed homesteads, explains that "through such communities we should evolve a combination of industrial employment and subsistence farming that will provide social and economic security to thousands of families now residing in overcrowded urban centers."

So far as the south is concerned, the new projects will be not only a step toward a necessary readjustment of population as between city and country, but they will stimulate the education of our farmers in modern methods.

No section will be as much benefited by the homesteads as the south, and the government should accordingly receive the full co-operation of every interest in this section, both rural and urban.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

That South American War.

For nearly two years now the South American republics of Paraguay and Bolivia live on a war-footing, and are fighting each other in a district known as the Gran Chaco. It is said that the Gran Chaco is a huge, bleak poisonous jungle-land, almost unfit for human habitation, and it must be somewhat of a puzzle to most people why two nations should be battling each other for its possession to the point where already 60,000 men have fallen. The explanation is, of course, that the Gran Chaco is a tremendous potential oil-field and that the two republics are merely the pawns in a much bigger contest, namely, that between the two giant oil trusts, the one American and the other British.

In Europe, the war in the Gran Chaco is generally spoken of as a contest of strength between Britain and the U. S. A. However that may be, the fact remains that human beings are dying like flies out there. I haven't seen any reports of American journalists who have gone down there to look things over. But there has just been published in Paris a series of articles by the well-known journalist, Monsieur Jean Alloucherie, who has managed to reach the front by enlisting as a temporary lieutenant in the Paraguayan army. What M. Alloucherie has to say is a shocking story. The death rate in both armies is so high that both Bolivia and Paraguay have come to the point where children are taken from school and sent out there into that killing heat of the Chaco to do the fighting. He saw entire trenches full with boys, 15, 16 years old, whimpering and trembling in fear of an enemy raid.

Boy Officers.

Lieutenants not older than 16 and 17 years wept when they told M. Alloucherie of their experiences and of the hopelessness of their situation. To be sent to the front down there means certain death, if not from enemy bullets then from disease and malnutrition. The region where the fighting is taking place is so far away from the two capital cities and the road thither is so impassable that it actually takes months to get there. Medical supplies and foodstuffs arrive at the front with the greatest difficulty and mostly in a spoiled condition. There is therefore no adequate treatment of the wounded, and so far as wounded enemy soldiers are concerned they are simply slaughtered or trampled to death. M. Alloucherie reports.

Killing is the simplest way out. Both armies virtually live on the land, which means that they engage in periodic raids on the nearest agricultural settlements, which happen to be settlements of Mennonites, who have settled there after the Russian revolution. All standards of morality have broken down, reports the French journalists and the armies also raid the war area for women.

* * * *

Comparative Strength.

Bolivia has the best equipment, 500 machine guns, a small fleet of tanks and even some bombing planes and liquid-fire outfits. Bolivia has, moreover, 40,000 men in the field, while Paraguay has but 10,000 men, and they are armed sorely with rifles and hatchets. Yet the Paraguayans, it appears, have so far had the best of it. The Bolivians are commanded by General Hans Kundt, a German; his opponents are under leadership of General Jose Esterribia, a gentleman who had his training at the Ecole Superieure de la Guerre in Paris.

Last year Esterribia inflicted a smashing defeat on the Bolivians. He made it appear that he saw the futility of fighting a superior army and withdrew. The Bolivians followed, but when they had been thoroughly enmeshed in a marshy region, Esterribia attacked. Two Bolivian divisions became separated and the whole army was cut off from its base. Ten thousand Bolivians were captured. Several attempts by the League of Nations and by the government of the United States to bring the war to a close have failed. So long as the money comes in, I presume, the fighting will go on. With the casualty lists piling up on both sides, it looks as if they are fighting a war of extermination down there. You'd think people would have more sense in our time and generation.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

ACIDOSIS HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH THE CRI.

In your booklet "Call It Cri," page 18, you say:

"Diet is a minor matter . . . I take no stock in the prevailing hokum about 'acidosis' and diet or medicine that opposes the hypothetical overproduction of acid waste products . . ."

But on page 23 you say, in describing the preparation and use of your "fool proof cough medicine"—

"Besides the medicine serves as an alkali to oppose any acidosis attending the illness."

Is this not inconsistent? (O. E.)

It may seem so, to one whose knowledge of physiology is mainly imparted by nostrum makers and plausible charlatans.

Educated people of the class I call wiseacres are quite likely to cherish certain glib notions of such matters as acidosis and high blood pressure, and once the bunk merchants have the wiseacres well misinformed it is easy to go ahead and exploit them, rather easier than it is to bamboozle the plain every-day ignoramus, for the wiseacre is a most credulous soul if you appeal to what he smugly considers his superior intelligence.

As I have tried to explain here many times, there is no ground whatever for the notion that wrong diet ever causes acidosis. Starvation may cause acidosis, and so may ill advised restriction in diet for the purpose of quick reduction of weight. Acidosis not rarely occurs in the course of and as a consequence of certain serious illnesses. But I repeat there is absolutely no sense in the wiseacre notion that acidosis is likely to occur if you happen to take the wrong combinations of foods or if you prefer meat to vegetables or if you like lots of meat.

Certain publicity hunters in recent years have made the front page with their shrewd theories that acidosis is a cause of "colds," and hence the proper treatment for an illness that purports to be a "common cold" is an enormous quantity of saleratus and a lot of citrus fruit or its juice and, when you do resume eating, only foods which will not leave acid ash. Very plausible and entertaining for the wiseacre, no doubt, but in my opinion it is sheer hokum.

It is entirely reasonable to expect that an attack of cri (heaven only knows which of the common respiratory infections it may be) may cause some slight acidosis, particularly in the case of a child. The alkali (citrate of soda) in the "fool proof cough medicine" is not used particularly for that purpose, but rather because it is a good sedative expectorant, a diuretic and diaphoretic. And it does tend to oppose any acidosis attending (that is, resulting from) the illness. This same sodium citrate, by the way, was formerly much used as an addition to cow's milk, to make it more alkaline, for infant feeding. So it must be pretty safe medicine, for child or adult. If the reader would like instructions for making and taking the medicine I recommend for cri, he will find the details in the booklet "Call It Cri," copy of which will be mailed on receipt of request; inclose a dime and stamped envelope bearing the correct address.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

WEAKNESS WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—One of Mr. Roosevelt's best friends broke down and confessed off the record recently that the main thing wrong with the New Deal was the New Dealer.

Being one of them, he spoke with authority and his words dug deep:

"More and more every day this is getting to be a one-man show, not because the president wants it to be, but because so few men around him have the vision and capacity to take the load from him. It is singular, after all the big work done so far, that so few New Dealers have distinguished themselves doing it.

"Everyone knows that the president has had to rely mainly on a few trusted old friends, college professors and army officers. He has practically exhausted those fields and the results could hardly be called sensational.

"If the New Deal fails, it will not be because the policies were bad, but because they were badly administered."

FLYING WEDGE The New Dealers have shied away from talking about the bucket shop raids because the New York, Boston and Baltimore raids involved undercover tactics. The fact is that the raiding squad has adopted a flying wedge technique which is the latest accomplishment of New Deal reform activity.

The squad is led by Big Tim Callahan, former All-American center at Yale, who knows football philosophy. When citizens complain of being gypped by a bucket shop, the sec turns the complaints over to Callahan. He descends on the brokerage house just before closing, locks the doors, closes the telephone line and establishes himself in the largest chair as a magistrate. No word or person goes in or out until Mr. Callahan has taken the testimony of all and looked over the records.

In Baltimore he kept a brokerage house locked all night.

The idea is to avoid all habeas corpus lawyers until Mr. Callahan makes a touchdown.

EXCUSE IT, PLEASE This column was wrong in describing (November 22) a particular letter written by A. F. of L. Chairman Green to the White House, submitting a list of demands. What happened was that Mr. Green wrote three letters (November 5) to the White House submitting the demands of the A. F. of L. convention—not his own. In these letters he did not ask for an appointment with the president.

Ten days after Mr. Green wrote his letters he received three routine responses from the president's assistant secretary. Thse stated the A. F. of L. resolutions had been referred to various departments. That clears up the correspondence angle but does not alter the peculiar underlying situation existing between the White House and the A. F. of L., as described in that column. An effort to clear up the situation may be made when Mr. Roosevelt returns from Warm Springs.

COUNTING The word has gone around on the inside that the republican New Mexican senator, Bronson Cutting, is going to be counted out in the senate.

That is why you saw Senator Norris say the other day that his friend, Mr. Roosevelt, made a mistake in opposing Cutting and Farmer-Laborite Senator Shipstead. Norris got wind of what is afoot and is trying to get the president to stop it.

Cutting's democratic opponent, Chavez, really believes he can make out a case in two counties. Also, he will make some charges about hiring automobile workers on election day in certain sections.

When an election is as close as that one, it is a simple matter for the preponderantly heavy democratic senate majority to resolve all doubts in favor of the democrats. That was demonstrated only a few years ago in the Brookhart case.

All the democrats will have to do is to find a legal pretext for canceling a few thousand Cutting votes. Any four-cylinder lawyer can arrange it without difficulty.

NOTES The latest is that the V. P. (you may recall his name is Garner) is not going to Warm Springs but will come directly to Washington around December 10. It looks as if he is not in an extra big hurry to get into the speakership argument or the bonus compromise.

Secret Service Assistant Murphy permitted newsmen to inspect the counterfeit $100 bills recently seized, but carefully counted them afterward to see that none was missing. Strangely, none was.

The leading FDIC Economist Fox is a nephew of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. Some time back he tried to get Morgenthau to give him a job. Morgenthau declined because he did not want to be accused of nepotism. So Fox got his job from FDIC Chairman Crowley, without Morgenthau's help, and now he just about runs the place.

The American Statistical Society is secretly arranging to conduct an unemployment census, which should furnish some needed unbiased figures.

The battle between Mr. Roosevelt and the public utilities interests has only begun. There will be a sharp thrust by the New Deal shortly in a quarter where it is not expected.

The Impatient Miss a Good Show by Leaving During the First Act

By Robert Quillen

Mary was down to her last nickel and her landlady had given her 24 hours in which to pay up or move.

She had come to the city with boundless faith in her ability to win fame and fortune and astonish the folks back home. Now she was ashamed to go back and confess her failure and afraid to go on living.

"I'm sorry to see you here, Mary," said he. "We weren't expecting you."

"I couldn't go on living," said Mary. "Life was too dreadful and hopeless."

"I understand," the old man said kindly, "but let me tell you the story of a girl much like you.

"She was down to her last nickel and ready to give up when she met a young doctor who was rooming next door. They fell in love at sight and were married within a month.

"Of course they were poor at first, but youth and happiness are not dismayed by poverty and they found life a joyous adventure.

"Mary had hoped for a career of her own, but she got interested in the young doctor's work and learned to be a nurse.

"Then the war came and she went abroad with her husband. Soon she had charge of a hospital and thousands of wrecked and hopeless men owed their lives and mended bodies to her efficiency and inspiring courage.

"After the war she was content to live quietly at home, guiding and ministering to her family. One of her sons became a judge, another a senator and the third a celebrated surgeon.

"Her life was useful and busy and happy and she died without fear or regret when old age had taken away the desire to live."

"That was fine," said Mary. "Why couldn't I have had a life like that?"

"You could, my dear," said the old man. "That was the life we had planned for you, but you wouldn't wait for it."

SUSPECT IS ARRESTED IN ATTEMPTED HODLUP

A man who said he was W. A. Livingston, 37, of a Boulevard address, was held on "suspicion" Monday by police after he is alleged to have attempted to hold up a cafe at 475 Ponce de Leon avenue early Monday morning.

Police said they were told he ate a large meal at the restaurant and when finished shouted he had been robbed of $2 and then ordered the proprietor and five taxicab drivers in the place to hold up their hands. He left without getting any money and said he would return. Patrolman W. F. Jones arrested him later on the street and took him to the police station. Officers said Livingston broke out several window panes in his cell in the new jail.

'Anniversary' Beating Lands Husband in Jail

Robert Dowdy, a negro is sad today because he won't be able to spend his first wedding anniversary with his wife.

Dowdy, married one year ago today, was convicted of beating his wife yesterday and for the next 30 days will be found at the city stockade. Judge A. W. Calloway saw to that in recorder's court Monday.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Student Reports On L. S. U. Matter. NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The first detailed account of Huey Long's attempt to suppress unfavorable opinion by censorship of the Reveille, the student newspaper published by the journalism class of Louisiana State University has been received in a letter from a student in the university. The letter reports that Long withdrew his censor after one week when the student editor and his entire staff threatened to force the issue of the freedom of the press by resigning.

"Long was smart," says the student correspondent. "He wants the college vote for president in 1936 or 1940. He realised that a student revolt at Louisiana State would queer him in campus circles all over the country."

"As things stand, his bluff has been called. The Reveille resumes its status of an uncensored newspaper."

Writer Asks Secrecy. The student who wrote the letter has asked your correspondent to withhold his name lest he be punished in accordance with Long's threat to fire out of the university anybody, student or professor, "who utters a word against Huey Long."

The situation described is something new in American politics and education.

This is the letter.

"On Thursday, November 15, on the floor of the state senate, Huey Long flew into a violent and profane rage when he happened to see a letter criticizing him in advance copy of the Reveille. Huey cursed J. H. Cutrer Jr., editor, and cursed Cutrer's ancestors. He remembered that Cutrer's uncle, a Baptist preacher, voted for his impeachment in 1929 and then cursed louder.

"He threatened expulsion of Cutrer and D. R. Norman, a sophomore commerce student, who wrote the letter of criticism. The letter mildly chided Huey for carrying the Mickal fiasco too far and commended Mickal and the athletic authorities for refusing to participate in a burlesque of constitutional government."

'Honor' Refused By Athlete. It may be recalled that Huey "elected" Abe Mickal, a Syrian and a resident of Mississippi, to the state senate at $10 a day and perquisites in recognition of Mickal's feats as a member of the football team which has been exploited this year for purposes of political ballyhoo by Senator Long. Mickal refused to accept the seat and Captain Biff Jones, United States Army, the coach of the team, called on Huey to "explain" that, what with football practise and his studies, Mickal was too busy to be a senator.

Continuing, the letter says:

"Long said L. S. U. was his university, that he had made it and that he would fire a thousand students if necessary and have 10,000 to take their places. He then commanded President James M. Smith, whom he appointed, to come to the capitol immediately and ordered that the paper be suppressed."

Guard Posted At Doors. "Doctor Smith soon arrived and they went to the printing plant and posted a guard at the door. All student staff members were searched for copies of the paper and 4,000 copies were destroyed.

"Cutrer, the editor, arrived on the run. If he had resisted having Norman's letter pulled out he would have been dismissed then and there. So he took the letter out and the Reveille appeared without the criticism.

"Long appointed to the journalism faculty Miss Helen Gilkison, his close newspaper friend and correspondent in Baton Rouge for the United Press and the New Orleans Item. He told President Smith Miss Gilkison was to teach journalism and be 'special advisor' on questionable articles or letters.

"Cutrer said that the censorship was contrary to the lectures of Professor Marvin G. Osborn, director of the school of journalism who is a strong believer in the freedom of the press. Professor Osborn has a wife and several children to support. He has not yet declared his opinion of this particular incident of the freedom of the press.

Editor Threatened. "Cutrer's staff agreed to stand by him. President Smith went to Washington and Dean James M. Broussard became acting president. He commanded Cutrer to allow Miss Gilkison's 'advising' or else resign or be fired.

"Cutrer can expect no faculty support as they all need their jobs. He may get some student support because many students are tired of Long's antics on the campus.

"But many other students are on the university payroll or their relatives are on the state pay roll so they cannot be expected to say anything.

"Cutrer was told to do what Senator Long said to do. He was also told that any nonsence on his part may cause Professor Osborn and even President Smith to lose their jobs.

"I request that you do not use my name. You see, I am also a student and might not be one much longer if my name were associated with that of a man whom Huey exceedingly dislikes."

of American industry" scheduled for December 5 in New York under the auspices of his organization. The meeting, to be attended by prominent industrialists, is directed at the formulation of "a platform for American industry."

Foreign Trade.

The commerce department's foreign trade figures followed a series of other more optimistic reports covering the entire field of commerce and industry, published by the same department, the bureau of labor statistics and the federal reserve board.

The statistics showed that for the first ten months of the year exports totaled $1,767,697,000 as compared with $1,208,099,000 in 1933. Imports for the same period this year aggregated $1,371,871,000 and last year $1,187,500,000. For the ten months of 1934, the favorable trade balance was $395,826,000.

Authoritative quarters revealed coincidentally that the administration is planning to begin soon the negotiation of a reciprocal trade treaty with Argentina, under the act permitting the president to reduce tariffs by as much as 50 per cent in return for similar concessions from other countries.

Such treaties with Brazil and Colombia are expected to be announced before long, followed by the negotiation of trade pacts with numerous smaller South and Central American nations in addition to Argentina.

MADDOX OUTLINES COMMITTEE WORK

Atlantan Returns From Washington, Where Program Was Mapped.

Robert F. Maddox, Atlanta financier, on his return from Washington Monday outlined the nation-wide program by which the American Bankers Association hopes to carry forward the pledge it gave President Roosevelt at its recent convention to spur completion of recovery by restoration of lagging foreign trade.

Mr. Maddox has been selected chairman of the bankers' committee which will work with the export-import banks, the federal agency directed by George N. Peek, foreign trade adviser to the president, which was set up to aid commerce and industry in bringing international business relations back to normal.

The plan of the bankers as explained by Mr. Maddox, was evolved at a two-day session between leading financiers representing every section of the country, Mr. Peek and other government officials in charge of the foreign trade movement.

"Naturally the whole process to be followed by our committee and the government has not yet been definitely worked out, but briefly, the plan provides that commercial banks which are not equipped to handle foreign business shall direct prospective customers to those banks that are," the Atlantan said. "The leading commercial banks of the 12 federal reserve districts have been assigned the responsibility of familiarizing the 12,000 member institutions throughout the country with what the federal government can and will do in helping expand export trade. We will forward our entire program to these member banks in a few days."

Serving on the committee with Mr. Maddox, who represents this district, are Joseph C. Rovensky, vice president of the Chase National of New York, representing the second district; Charles E. Spencer, vice president of the First National of Boston, representing the first district; Stephen E. Ruth, vice president of the Philadelphia National, the third district; William H. Gideon, vice president of the Union Trust of Baltimore, fifth district; Harry Salinger, vice president of the First National of Chicago, the seventh district; A. D. Simpson, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce of Houston, eleventh district, and J. S. Curran, vice president of the Anglo-California Bank of San Francisco, twelfth district.

In addition to this committee a special advisory committee to keep in close touch with Mr. Peek and his associates was named.

In connection with the program, Mr. Maddox Monday made public the following statement from Mr. Peek:

"I heartily welcome this plan of co-operation, which is highly satisfactory to me. It means that no bank, however small or distant from Washington, will fail to be aware of what our export-import banks are doing and are prepared to do.

"The assistance of this advisory committee has been extremely practical and helpful and will continue to be so as our joint operations in this very important field shall grow.

"The enlargement of sound foreign credits where they are needed is our mutual objective, and this plan is a substantial forward step in the practical usefulness of the export-import banks."

not involving anything like the tentative estimates of $12,000,000,000 that have been reported as under consideration in the past months.

"Our discussions took in a pretty broad field," Robinson said in conclusion, explaining that Senator Harrison's committee would begin a study on employment insurance, one of the recommendations to the new session.

"Well, that is not expected to cost the government much," a newspaperman suggested.

"No, but everybody now looks to the government for everything," he laughingly answered.

It was revealed that housing also played a prominent part in the Little White House discussions, a subject that will be given full attention later in the week when James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, comes to Warm Springs.

Hecht Calls.

Another White House caller was Rudolph Hecht, president of the American Bankers' Association. He reported to Mr. Roosevelt in optimistic fashion, telling him that reports from all over the country showed a decided business upturn. He added that he expected the gains to be consolidated and remain permanent.

The president drove his own car to Georgia hall, a Warm Springs Foundation building, to meet Robinson and Harrison, who stood shivering in overcoats against a chill wind that swept down from Pine mountain.

"How do you like the sunny south?" he asked. In reply they turned up their overcoat collars and clambered into his open car for the two-mile drive to the Little White House.

ROOSEVELTS INVITED TO SEE BULLOCH HALL

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 26. (AP)—President Roosevelt today met a delegation from Roswell, Ga., which called to present him and Mrs. Roosevelt with a Thanksgiving turkey.

The group extended an invitation to Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt to visit Roswell, where at Bulloch hall the grandfather of Mrs. Roosevelt was married.

The president said it would be impossible this year to go to Roswell but he expressed confidence of an opportunity to go there next year.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 26.—One of the most unusual meetings ever held in Hollywood takes place when the women extras of the colony parade before a selected committee of ten, in order to end the dispute that has been going on for some time, as to whether a girl shall be hired as a "dress extra" or a "regular extra."

It makes all the difference in the world to the girls and it will help the casting officials no end, because, in the future, a call for "dress extras" won't be answered by those not qualified for the part.

"Dress people," in studio parlance, are girls who have attractive wardrobes and the poise and distinction to appear in a film showing a smart crowd, without looking out of place. In other words, they must look as if they "belonged." If you get into this class, your pay is $15 a day.

If you can't make the grade and are only a "regular" extra, you will play the part of street crowds or people in simpler circumstances, and get $7.50 a day.

Dress people own their own wardrobes and other extras are costumed by the studios.

At present Hollywood studios have figured out that more than 20 per cent of their daily calls are for "dress extras." Hence, the decision to end all argument on the subject by giving each girl a fair chance to be registered for this special work.

The committee will consist of various casting men from the studios and two fashion artists, as yet unannounced. In order to get full camera effect, the girls may appear in make-up and may even be beautified by the make-up department of R. K. O., where the meeting will take place.

As they parade around one of the biggest sound stages on the lot, they will be called out by numbers, until the lucky few who win remain on the stage.

DIVINITY STUDENT KILLS WIFE, PRIEST

stairs to my room and make a confession.'

Asked Priest for Gun.

"The priest and Mrs. Steinmetz left the room. In a few minutes, Steinmetz said he followed them and knocked on the door of the priest's room. The priest told him to come in. Steinmetz said he asked the priest where his pistol was. The priest told him it was in his coat pocket. Steinmetz got the pistol and fired at the priest and his wife.

"He said: 'My mind was all in a whirl. I don't remember anything after firing.'"

Price said there were some details he could not divulge; that these would have to come from District Attorney William C. Dodge.

The assistant would not discuss the state of dress of those shot by Steinmetz. From other official sources at the police station, it was learned the bodies when found by the medical examiner were only partially clad.

Among Mrs. Steinmetz's effects was a registration card of the Hollywood High school. The marriage certificate, found in the room, showed she was married under the maiden name of Ruth T. Tiles.

Steinmetz went to the west coast in 1930. In Brooklyn he lived with his mother.

He renounced the faith of Judaism to study for the ministry and entered the Bible Institute in Los Angeles. He worked for a time in a Hollywood hotel as a clerk and was employed on several occasions in a minor capacity at various movie studios.

Price said their investigation showed his wife had "a couple minor roles in the movies."

He said he had been drinking the last week, but normally was a moderate user of alcohol. In reply to questions concerning his religious faith, he said:

"I am of Jewish birth, but I have been converted to the Protestant religion."

"What denomination?" he was asked.

"Interdenominational," he replied.

He said he was not a citizen of the United States, having come to this country from Rumania, where he was born, in April of 1928 or 1929; he couldn't remember which.

The usual question was asked as to whether he used drugs, and he said "No."

Development of Flying Boat Outlined Before Air Group

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Advancements made in large types of flying boats and their utility for trans-oceanic air transport service were discussed in testimony before the federal aviation commission today by Glenn L. Martin, president of the aircraft manufacturing company bearing his name.

Mr. Martin, one of two witnesses heard by the commission in executive session Monday, also presented broad recommendations for changes in government aircraft procurement policy. Preceding him, Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, was questioned on the feasibility of extending American air transport services to foreign countries.

Martin's Testimony.

"In justice to the flying boat," said Mr. Martin, "I wish to correct the impression that the long-range flying boat is not ready to carry tonnage in over-ocean transport service. Fortunately, I can speak from personal experience on this subject, because in a few days my company will launch a flying boat specifically designed and fitted for over-ocean transport. This flying boat has a useful load of 28,000 pounds. Fuel and oil for a non-stop ocean voyage of 3,500 miles amounts to 23,000 pounds, leaving a disposable capacity of some 5,000 pounds. By the use of high lift devices now available, this pay capacity can be increased to over 10,000 pounds. This particular airplane was built for a specified purpose. The significant thing is that over-ocean airplanes of almost any desired capacity are available upon order.

"For example, no addition to present knowledge or technique is needed to build an ocean transport airplane to carry a useful load of 52,000 pounds. With proper allowances of crew, equipment, fuel and oil, a non-stop trip of 4,000 miles can be made with a net pay load of 20,000 ponds."

Testimony Related.

The commission, headed by Clark Howell, also made public the following phase of Mr. Martin's testimony, bearing on the subject of procurement:

"I believe the best method of procurement of aircraft for the government services is the form usually referred to as 'public bidding.'

"Public bidding and complete competition within the aircraft industry are only possible when the annual business available to the trade is such that a number of large aircraft plants are maintained in practically continuous production and whose engineering and development plants are continuously employed.

"The present aircraft industry is not so established.

"During the present development period it is desirable to deviate as little as possible from the fundamentally correct procurement method, therefore, we respectfully suggest your consideration of the following:

Points Cited.

"Aircraft type directive prepared in complete form by a government agency offered to the entire aircraft industry for design competition.

"Statements to the industry as a part of the aviation, that three or more separate orders for one plane each would be let to the three or four best designers.

"Contracts made as a result of the competition should be at cost plus a fixed profit or at a fixed equal price to all successful contractors as set by the government and so announced with the invitation to bid.

"For the quantity production orders the government would invite sealed bids from the three or four winners of the open design competition, thereby securing the great value to be derived from complete competition.

"A very valuable and important by-product of the above method is the practical result of maintaining a larger number of successful groups of aircraft builders in peace-time periods and who are so vitally needed in case of emergency.

Matter of Contracts.

"It appears to me that negotiations of contracts is, in the last analysis, only an unregulated form of old-fashioned cost-plus.

"Negotiation is, in theory at least, an attempt to compensate contractors for what the government believes to be the proper cost plus a profit. The government becomes the arbiter in the determination of cost, and it becomes involved in the responsibility for occasional misjudgments of cost prediction.

"Negotiation is based on anticipated cost. Cost prediction for design research and development is difficult at best, and procurement officers, who in the very nature of negotiated contracts, attempt to balance losses and profits so that the ultimate result will be quitable to the contractor and to the best interests of the government, find themselves under a grave personal responsibility.

"In negotiation there is always the liability of well-grounded differences of opinion as to what constitutes cost. The cost of carryover between contracts is difficult to provide for.

"The problem of losses in building experimental aircraft has been a thorn in the side of procurement officers and manufacturers for years.

"The uncertainty of obtaining compensation for development work has faced manufacturers with the dilemma of curtailing needed development or losing money. The manufacturer who chose to spend money in his development usually found himself in a handicapped position, as far as price is concerned, when seeking further business.

"Any plan of procurement providing centralized specification and design which has been built up in the theory that the average manufacturer can produce them will result in mediocre airplanes."

Day Set Aside in Honor Of Ruth Owen Bryan

Mayor James L. Key Monday proclaimed Sunday as Woman's Day in Atlanta in honor of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, United States minister to Denmark and former congresswoman from Florida.

Mrs. Owen will speak to Atlantans Sunday afternoon at the Erlanger theater, and various women's organizations of the city have initiated a move to make the visit to Atlanta a notable event.

'VANITIES' MONEY TIED UP BY COURT

Earl Carroll Broke Contract to Show Here, Petition Charges.

Earl Carroll's Vanities lived up to the old stage tradition "the show must go on" in its performances at the auditorium Monday, notwithstanding legal difficulties encountered when Russell Bridges, promoter, was served with a restraining order from Fulton superior court ordering withholding of payment of Carroll's share of the proceeds. It was stipulated in the court order, however, that by posting a bond to be approved by the clerk of superior court, the order might be dissolved. No bond had been posted Monday night.

The order issued by Judge E. D. Thomas was on petition of J. R. Curran, who alleged that Carroll and the Vanities broke a contract with him and W. F. Winecoff for five performances of the Vanities at the Erlanger theater from November 29 to December 1, inclusive.

The petition sets forth that Curran has incurred obligations amounting to about $600 in preparation for the Erlanger showing, and also asks judgment for $1,200, estimated 30 per cent of the proceeds of the receipts at the auditorium, the total sum asked being $1,757 85. Curran alleges that Carroll entered into a contract with him and Winecoff on October 17, through Rush Jermon and United Booking Offices, and attaches alleged telegraphic confirmation of the contract. He charges that Earl Carroll and Earl Carroll's Vanities, Inc., are insolvent, and that it is planned to transfer the management of the Vanities to others after the company leaves Atlanta. A temporary receiver for the receipts from the Atlanta performances is asked.

Judge Thomas set a hearing for December 1 at 9:30 o'clock. The restraining order was served upon Jim Carroll, manager of the company.

Curran said Monday that under his arrangement with Winecoff the Charles Emerson Cook players had agreed to vacate the Erlanger for the alleged scheduled performances of the Vanities.

Showers and Warmer On Weather Map Here

If you like cloudy skies, occasional showers and slightly warmer weather than the last few days have given us, then you are well fixed for the next two or three days, according to Forecaster George W. Mindling, for that is just the kind of weather found on the Atlanta menu.

Today's temperature is expected to rise above Monday's, with a 44 to 58 degree range. Monday's mercury registered 38 degrees low and 47 degrees high.

Freezing weather is confined mostly to the New England and Rocky Mountain regions, according to the weather map. Atlanta's rain is coming from the western section, where the weather is decidedly wet, but with nothing like the torrential downpour that was experienced there last week.

Ex-Countess Cathcart In Divorce Court

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Lady Vera Hodge, the former Countess Cathcart, of the "moral turpitude" immigration drama of 1926, will be heard by a British court and special jury tomorrow on her petition for divorce.

Lady Vera has asked a decree against Sir Rowland Hodge, 75-year-old millionaire Tynside shipowner, who became her third husband on September 30, 1930.

Sir Rowland was expected to contest the action, which will be heard before Sir Boyd Merriman.

When Vera, former Countess of Cathcart, arrived in the United States on the liner Carmanian on February 9, 1926, she was detained at Ellis Island by immigration authorities, arousing one of the most sensational moral controversies in history.

The countess, whose first husband was De Grey Warter and her second the Earl of Cathcart, said she was detained because she was divorced from the Earl of Cathcart.

Immigration commissioners, however, claimed she had been ordered excluded from the United States "because she admitted the commission of the crime involving moral turpitude—adultery."

She had admitted her love affair with the young Earl of Craven, whom Cathcart named as co-respondent.

Japanese Rail Action Denounced by Soviet

MOSCOW, Nov. 26. — (UP) — Charges indicating a virtual reign of terror on the Chinese Eastern railroad in Manchukuo were made public here tonight in the form of two letters of protest written by the soviet vice chairman of the board to the road's Manchukuo president.

The soviet railway official, M. Bandura, submitted a detailed list of 28 cases in which he charges Japanese and Manchukuo officials defied regulations of the C. E. R., abused employes' rights and sometimes physically attacked them without reason.

He lodged a firm protest and demanded these alleged abuses cease. Similar protests have been made in the past but the present one is the strongest yet filed.

The picture of present conditions on the railroad as depicted by Bandura was one in which Japanese soldiers and guards ruthlessly disregarded all rights of the line and used it as their private property.

TREASURY NOT TO CALL 4TH LIBERTY BONDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today the treasury's December financing program will not include an exchange offer for the billion in fourth Liberty bonds which have been called for next April.

He also said the treasury was not going to call $300,000,000 in 4 per cent Home Owner Loan bonds which become callable in December.

Beyond these two assurances of what December financing would not include, Morgenthau declined to discuss just what borrowing plans the treasury has for December 15.

DEATH REVEALS PAUPER AS MAN OF MEANS

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 26.—(AP)—James Bockelman, 73, who lived the life of a pauper, today in death was disclosed to be a man of means.

Police called to his dingy cottage found his body on the kitchen floor. Apparently Bockelman had been dead several days.

Cancelled checks showed that he recently bought $14,000 worth of bonds at a bank here, and officials of the bank at Cole Camp said he had bonds there worth $6,000 and $100 on deposit. Other papers showed that the aged man had several thousand dollars loaned on property. Police found $80 in old bills hidden in pocket books.

In Georgia's FIELDS and STREAMS

By H. A. Carter

Yesterday we examined the virgin forests and the primitive type of farms for wild life, finding it more abundant on the partially cleared areas than we found it in the dense woodlands. Today we are going to push our investigation a bit closer to the city, into regions where the agricultural agents have been influential. We are now in farming country that has a decidedly prosperous appearance. The fields are laid off in geometrical patterns. The fences are no longer the split-rail, snake fences that bring the blush of shame to the faces of those who advocate "modern" cultivation. They are shiny woven wire fences and there are no weeds growing in the corners, either. Harvesting is done by machinery that gathers more of the grain into flour mills than the old hand scythe ever could. Cotton seems to be the king of the land, too, and whatever grain there is on the place is there as a concession to the fact that it has to be grown. Hedgerows have disappeared and in their stead we find nicely laid out terraces bearing enough Bermuda sod to keep them from rushing away to the sea. There may be a few trees around the home, but the chances are that the only forest in evidence is half a mile from there. It is a clean, modern, progressive farm and we are glad to see that our state is going ahead in agriculture. Now take your census of the game on this land, or any other wild life, for that matter. I am now thinking more about the field mice and the granivorous birds than any other form of wild life. You are going to be surprised to find that the farming methods of a century ago produce an environment that is ideal for almost every type of bird and animal.

We need go no further toward the towns unless we want to slip into a hardware store and listen to the hunters talking. Almost everywhere there is a hunting club assessing its members good, solid dollars to spend in buying game birds to "restock" their club preserve. They decided, en masse, that the way to have more game is to buy it and turn it loose on their property, trusting the god of all game birds to keep it from straying away.

Now for the parallel. When the lands were first cleared for agriculture, the dominance of the forest in its ecological climax was broken. Birds that had continued in small numbers through a hazardous existence found the environment upset and overbalanced in their favor. More ideal conditions for their breeding than had ever existed before were now theirs. They responded by breeding up to the limit of this new food supply. There was a greater crop of game every year. Songbirds found food more plentiful and increased accordingly. The removal of one checking factor stimulated the increase of wild life beyond all previous levels. Our nation was blessed with plenty for everybody.

REMODELING STARTED AT CARNEGIE LIBRARY

Project, Costing $57,000, Will Be Paid for Out of FERA Funds.

Remodeling of the Carnegie library and the construction af an extension to occupy the vacant space adjoining the main building on Forsyth street was launched Monday. The project, which will be paid out of FERA funds, will cost approximately $57,000.

The three floors of the building are to be extended over the vacant lot, which is 38 feet wide and 140 feet deep. The extension will permit six additional floors of book stacks or 70,000 more volumes in all.

The plans call for the construction of a new reading room back of the present circulation room, and the extension of the reference department. Likewise the periodical room will be expanded and made into a newspaper room where the daily papers of Atlanta and other cities will be kept.

The boys' and girls' department is being rearranged completely so that the entrance will be at the southern doors of the room. This entrance will open into a corridor leading from Forsyth street to a small open court at the center of the back of the building. This court will provide air and light for the extension. This addition will make it possible for the library to set up a special room for Parent-Teacher groups and also provide an office for the boys' and girls' librarian.

The library's valuable collection of Atlanta newspapers will be housed on the lowest floor of the new book stacks on shelves especially designed for the files.

168 COUPLES GIVEN DIVORCES AT AUGUSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—While two members of the 1935 legislature were advocating speedier divorce laws in Georgia, 168 couples were granted divorces during a single day's session in Richmond superior court here.

At the close of the session Judge A. L. Franklin deplored conditions necessitating divorce and suggested a "narrowing down" by law of just what constitutes cruel treatment.

Charges of cruelty, laziness and desertion were offered as grounds in most instances.

Meanwhile, Representative Stonewall Dyer, of Newnan, announced his intention of asking the next legislature to enact a 90-day divorce law, providing for special courts in the larger cities.

But Representative William K. Barrett, the lawyer-bridge player of Augusta, went him one better. He said he would seek a 60-day divorce law.

HISTORIC EDIFICE BURNS AT WAYNESBORO

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—"Old church," shrine of early settlers, was destroyed by fire yesterday. A combined church and fort of colonial days, it had been recently restored by the American Legion.

Built on land granted by King George II for an Anglican church, it had become a Presbyterian house of worship with the advent of Scotch-Irish settlers and a Methodist church under the preaching of Bishop Asbury.

LONG-TERM CONVICTS ESCAPE IN THOMAS

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Four long-term convicts were at large today after escaping from Thomas county stockade last night.

The men gained their freedom by cutting a hole through a double floor with knives and a mattock, and climbing a barbed-wire fence. Trusties who saw them escaping, sounded the alarm, and a searching party set out after the convicts.

Bloodhounds also were set on the trail, but were unable to track them because the ground was dry and cold.

Prison officials said the prisoners were listed as Joe Harvey alias Joe Palmer, sentenced to 10 to 20 years for robbery; Charles Goolsby, three to five years for automobile theft; Emory Brewer, 10 to 20 years for robbery, and Joe Evans, five to 7 years for robbery.

Cotton-Control Bill Passed In 1862 Limited Georgia Crop

By AL G. SMITH.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Controlling cotton production is far from new in Georgia—this state had it by law in 1862.

A search into old histories of the state showed that even before the law was passed a voluntary program had reduced the state's crop from 700,000 bales in 1861, the first year of the War Between the States, to 60,000 bales in 1862.

Appeals to patriotism in Georgia and other states brought about the reduction in cotton, which was practically the south's only money crop.

Southerners were told, Dr. E. M. Coulter, professor of history at the University of Georgia, said, that they must raise just enough cotton for the section's use and devote the rest of their acres to growing food for the Confederate armies. Large cotton crops, too, would be inducements to federal soldiers to raid the section.

Cotton reduction was necessary, Dr. Coulter said, for the wholly agrarian south raised little else when the war began. Much of its food and feedstuff was imported from other sections and unless the south began raising its own food it would be starved into submission.

"Dethrone King Cotton! Enthrone King Corn!" were the headlines in newspapers and magazines of that time.

The appeals were so influential that the south's production of cotton dropped from 4,500,000 bales in 1861 to 299,000 bales in 1864, the last harvest year of the war.

Georgia's law, passed mainly to be sure no one grew too much, provided that three acres of cotton might be planted for each hand owned or employed between the ages of 15 and 55. Smaller amounts could be grown by hands above and below those ages. The general assembly enacted the measure into law December 11, 1862.

The penalty was a fine of $500 for each acre planted above the quota—and the assembly made sure violations would be reported by giving half the fine to the informer or prosecutor. All owners had to turn in the ages of their slaves or employes to the county tax receiver each year.

3 Members One Family Elected by Fraternity

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Three members of an Athens family, all students at the University of Georgia, have been elected to membership in Phi Kappa Phi, honorary scholastic fraternity.

CHANGES ARE SOUGHT IN BANKHEAD BILL

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Richmond County Cotton Control and Farm Club committeemen expressed the opinion that 90 per cent of the cotton contract signers in this county favor continuing the Bankhead cotton production control at for next year.

Views of the committeemen were expressed in a letter directed to Culley A. Cobb, chief of the AAA cotton section, which included recommendations for changes in the Bankhead act to give more consideration to the small farmers who had no base acreage for 1934.

The letter was signed by members of the county cotton committee and by representatives of the Hephzibah Agricultural Club.

The letter recommended that small farmers be allowed to gin 1,000 pounds of lint cotton, tax free, on not more than five acres. It expressed as the weakest link in the Bankhead act the lack of proper consideration for the small farmer. The letter also asked allowances for farmers whose yields were abnormally low for providential reasons.

NORRIS DAM ACCIDENT IS FATAL TO GEORGIAN

NORRIS, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Henry L. Gordon, 30, of Hiawassee, Ga., was killed at Norris dam yesterday when he failed to hear warning cries of fellow workers and was crushed beneath a ten-ton concrete pouring bucket at the dam. His was the third death since work started on the dam.

PEANUT HULLS USED AS FEED FOR COWS

CAIRO, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Peanut hulls have been substituted for cottonseed hulls as a dairy feed by R. V. Crine, local planter, dairyman and canning plant operator.

Some time ago Crine discovered that his cows were eating the peanut hulls, which he had bought in large quantities to use as fertilizer. He then bought all the hulls available and began feeding them to the cattle.

Learning that the unground hulls were injuring the mouths of the cows, he began grinding the hulls into meal, which he has been feeding the cows since.

Crine, a native of New Jersey, has 280 cows in his dairy herd.

PSYCOGRAPH RECORDS ARE NOW AVAILABLE

There seems to be something new under the sun after all.

Many new inventions, both mechanical and electrical, have been demonstrated to the public in the last decade, but none of them promises more in the way of human interest and development than the "psycograph" which is now being shown for the first time in Atlanta at J. M. High Company.

The psycograph records characteristics accurately and gives each person a printed record of his or her very own characteristics—a numerical rating and a printed description of the mental person.

The machine is operated electrically and is said to be "fool-proof." The entire operation for one reading is completed in 90 seconds—indicating the rating of the 32 faculties by the numerals, 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, which represent deficient, low, average, superior and very superior.

This system, according to its inventor, promises to revolutionize personnel work in business and industry.

CANDLER COUNTY PAYS ALL INDEBTEDNESS

METTER, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Candler county finally owns itself.

After struggling under the burden of heavy debts for many years, the county is finally out of the red and is considering holding a celebration in honor of that condition.

The erection of a $100,000 courthouse in 1921 contributed in large measure to the county's indebtedness.

In 1925, the debts approximated $95,000; in 1929, about $53,000.

D. for two years, and Mabel McDermaid Ford, of Huron, 22, today were under conviction of second-degree manslaughter following their trial for murder in the death of Nels Olson, Huron brewery worker, who was beaten and robbed after a drinking brawl last August 25.

They were convicted by a jury here last night.

LEGION POSTS ENTER MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

MACON, Ga., Nov. 26.—Commanders and adjutants of American Legion Posts in Georgia, with 3,250 paid-up members on hand, were working today to enroll more members in 1935 than either Alabama or Tennessee.

Those states challenged the Georgia department to obtain more members next year and at a meeting here yesterday the Georgians cleared decks to accept the challenge.

After various phases of the legion's program for the next year were discussed, Commander Delacey Allen, of Albany, called on officers of each post to make a community survey and adopt as a program that service which the community most needed.

AGED MAN IS BURNED TO DEATH IN HOME

SYLVANIA, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Trapped in his burning home, W. W. Oliver, 70, prosperous farmer, was burned to death at Hilltonia, near here, last midnight. William Oliver, his 15-year-old grandson, risked his own life in an attempt to rescue his grandfather.

No one but the man and the boy were in the house when it caught fire. About midnight the boy was awakened by the roar of the fire and jumped through a window into the yard.

Concerned about his grandfather, the boy smashed in the window of the man's bedroom, called for his grandfather, and not getting any answer, searched the room and not locating him the boy thought his grandfather had gotten out of the burning building safely.

The burned body of the grandfather was found in the ruins of the house.

Mr. Oliver was a prosperous Screven county farmer.

He is survived by two brothers, E. L. and G. M. Oliver, of Dover; two sons, Charlton Oliver, of Waynesboro, and Clarence Oliver, of Hilltonia, and three daughters, Mrs. Lola Granade, of Augusta; Mrs. Elizabeth Chance, of South Carolina, and Miss Adel Oliver, of Hilltonia.

Funeral services will be held at the family cemetery, Mount Pleasant, near the Oliver home, Tuesday morning.

With this dividend payment, approximately 34 per cent of the deposits will have been paid.

50,000,000 Fish May Be Placed In Streams of Georgia Annually

MACON, Ga., Nov. 26.—An enlargement program designed by the state game and fish department to increase its annual output of fish from 750,000 to from 30,000,000 to 50,000,000 for the public streams of the state will include two warm water hatcheries for Bibb county, it is learned here. Work on the local units, with the aid of the federal government, will begin immediately under the direction of Louis Wright, chief clerk of the state department, it was said.

Wright, Zack D. Cravey, state game and fish commissioner, and Charles C. Morgan, district game warden in the Macon territory, have worked on the projects for several months in their efforts to obtain government aid.

The ultimate program of the state department will include 10 units in Georgia, placing into the public streams nearly 50,000,000 fish annually.

The only unit which functioned last year was at Summerville, a cold water hatchery, and its output was 750,000.

A unit at Fitzgerald will be completed within the next few weeks and another at Millen has been approved, it was learned.

Human Acts as Television Machine Under Pressure of Doctor's Hands

ROME, Nov. 26.—(AP)—An amazing demonstration of the theory that man is a television machine was given this afternoon by Professor Giuseppe Calligaris, of the Royal University, of Rome, in the presence of many Italian scientists and doctors at the university.

Dr. Calligaris, who is professor of neuro-psychology, pressed certain points of a subject's body and the subject responded with minute descriptions of other persons and objects on the opposite side of a wall.

Dr. Calligaris told the other professors that if certain areas on the skin are agitated, the subject is given super-sensorial impressions enabling him to see objects he could not otherwise perceive.

To enable his subject to discern things on the other side of a wall, professor Calligaris pressed on a spot to the right of the thorax for 15 minutes.

Following this demonstration, Dr. Calligaris told his scientific audience that if other spots of the body, were agitated, the subjects could see objects at any distances, regardless of whether they had ever before seen the objects.

Good Shows at Fox, Capitol, Paramount

Atlanta theatergoers are getting a new and entirely pleasant slant on Francis Lederer, recently the most talked of matinee idol of the New York stage in his new picture, "The Pursuit of Happiness," showing at the Fox theater. Joan Bennett, of the famous Bennett family, is in support of the star.

The picture casts Lederer in the role of a young Hessian conscripted by the British to come to America to help put down the Revolution. He finds that the rebels seek that which he holds most dear and the situation brings out one of the cleverest plots seen here in months. It is the much-talked "bundling" picture, the bundling showing just what young Americans and young Hessians did on those dark and dreary nights of long ago.

Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland provide some fine comedy in the picture and there are some delightful short subjects.

At the Capitol is shown "Call It Luck," in which Pat Patterson and Charles Starrett are starred and in which Herbert Murdin provides some good comedy. On the stage is a first-class vaudeville show, "Rhapsody in Moods," in which a number of names well known in vaudeville, are found on the program. These include Barry and De Alba, Joe and Eddie Dayton and others, including a nifty chorus.

The Paramount is showing "The Gay Divorcee" for the second week and is finding that a number of the show's patrons are coming back a second and even a third time to see Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire, Edward Everett Horton and Alice Brady in the sparkling and tuneful comedy which made such a hit on the stage. "Gay Divorcee" has Astaire and Rogers singing and dancing the Continental and to the tune of "Night and Day," which is the reason for the second week and for the second and third visit by the theater's patrons.

VINNIE REAM BOYD CHARMS AUDIENCE WITH ONE-ACT PLAY

Vinnie Ream Boyd, noted Atlanta reader and dramatist, was presented by the Atlanta Woman's Club in a one-act play, "Sojourners," to an audience of more than 200 in the auditorium of the Woman's Club Monday afternoon in one of the most brilliant events that the Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Max Land is president, has presented in many a moon. The play, whose co-authors are Harnwell and Meeker, was particularly appropriate to the Thanksgiving season, representing the life of a family in Holland and their subsequent landing in America as passengers on the Mayflower, closing with their celebration of the first real Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Bond made a lovely picture, gowned in a modish rose blue formal afternoon dress. With the tastefully set stage as a background, her appearance put the audience in the proper frame of mind for enjoyment, and they were not disappointed. When one reader can portray seven entirely different characters and through her portrayal make them each actually live and breathe and radiate their own individual personalities, then I consider it the peak of artistic accomplishment in dramatization. And such was the accomplishment of Mrs. Boyd yesterday afternoon, hence the tremendous ovation she received for an outstanding stage success. Such a treat as Mrs. Boyd gave her audience should be repeated often.

Burlesque Producer Stars in Own Show

Paul Morokoff, the producer at the Atlanta theater, stars in his own production there this week, appearing in person for the first time in Atlanta. In his act he plays one of his own compositions on the piano and dances a routine. He is by the featured strip artist, Joan Lee, who sings the number.

There are some new faces to be seen this week and on the whole they are good. Vick Hallen anad Al Pharr offer fast comedy and the strips, featuring Vick Garrett, Esther Bert, Boots Burns and Miss Lee, take the show.

'Crowd at Auditorium Enjoys Carroll's Show

After getting away 15 minutes behind schedule, Earl Carroll's glorified burlesque was run off Monday night to the apparent satisfaction of a large and more or less representative group of citizens gathered at the auditorium.

After the maner of Mr. Carroll's epidermis operas, this version of the Vanities carried a large number of highly ornamental girls who were fine as long as they stood still to be looked at and only fair when warbling, reciting or dancing. Also as usual with Virtuoso Carroll's efforts, the lines inclined very much toward the earthy side and many of the gags and blackouts offered in this affair have been doing service for many seasons on the burlesque wheels. Judging from the reaction to them they still retain their audience allure.

The management couldn't find it in its heart to provide programs but as nearly as your reviewer could gather the major part of the laughs and action were delivered by Ken Murray, master of ceremonies; Chaz Chase, eccentric comedian, the dancing and clowning Rio brothers and Helen Charleston, who seemed to be the only female who contributed much except pulchritude.

The sets ran to the garish and the dance arrangements offered little in the way of originality or verve. The tableaux offered plenty of female anatomy what with the 3.2 costumes (they covered 3.2 per cent, etc., etc.) and this didn't seem to displease the customers to any great extent.

Easily the brightest spots, judging from audience reaction, were Miss Charleston's imitations of film favorites and Chaz Chase's mad "vegetarian dinner."

SHOT BY POLICEMAN, NEGRO DIES OF WOUND

Shot Saturday when officers attempted to arrest him on "suspicion" of a robbery, a negro man detectives said was Freeman Campbell, known as "Cocky," who was said to have been wanted in Cincinnati for a mail truck holdup, died of his wounds Monday in a negro house on the West Side.

The negro was wounded by Radio Patrolman W. F. Sutherland when he attempted to escape arrest in connection with a $5 negro robbery on Auburn avenue. Detectives Chester and Holland said the government has offered a $1,000 reward for Campbell.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

The bidding of the master player sometimes seems absolutely insane to the average onlooker. I do not mean the bidding on most hands, but the bidding which happens every now and then. There is nothing the expert enjoys so much as to try, by making certain bids, to build up a situation and thus practically direct the subsequent bids of his opponents. This fancy bidding occurs particularly in match point duplicate games when a player is willing to gamble for a top score. Even if his gamble goes wrong he can get only one bottom.

On today's hand, for instance, South, who was one of the nation's ranking experts, made an amazing series of bids. He decided that his best chance for a top on the board would be to get the opponents to take a costly sacrifice against a probably unmakable game. Everything worked out the way South wanted it to—the opponents did take the sacrifice—and then Fate in the form of South's partner stepped in and spoiled everything. South had fixed his opponents but he had not counted upon his partner's interference, and instead of a top score South got a bottom. Despite the difficulty of understanding South's amazing bids, I still must criticize North for interfering, as South had bid the hand in such a manner that he should have been allowed to have the final say.

1—East is too weak to make a free bid over the intervening overcall.
2—South decides to get fancy and play for a swing. He knows East to be weak and correctly deduces that his partner's overcall is a strong one but that it almost surely is not strong enough to enable North and South to make a game. South decides that he may fool the opponents if by very strong bidding he contracts for a game. The opponents in the meantime may, if taken in by South's strong bidding, decide to sacrifice in either diamonds or some other suit and be penalized. South's first step is to overcall in the opponents' bid suit. North should understand from this bid that South intends to control the bidding from now on.
3—East, having passed the first round, sees no reason why he should not cheaply show his suit at this point and possibly find a good way of out-bidding the opponents.
4—South shoots the works. He is gambling that West's holding will be such that the latter will be unable to double, and will decide to raise spades or bid more diamonds.
5—West falls into South's trap. Completely misled by South's very strong bidding and seeing an absolute maximum of three defensive tricks in his own hand, he decides that four hearts probably cannot be beaten and further that four spades will be penalized less than the value of the North-South game.
6—South, who a moment ago reached the height of joy, now tumbles into the depths of despair. North's five-heart bid, in my opinion, is very bad. Admittedly North has a much stronger hand than he has indicated up to now but it is the very strength of his own hand which should have tipped North off to the situation. North should have realized that it was impossible, with both opponents bidding, for South's terrifically strong bids to be legitimate. Either South was being very fancy and doing something very peculiar or South held a hand which was tremendously strong distributionally if played at hearts. If the latter were the case South of course could bid five hearts himself. At any rate North should have passed and let South take whatever action he wished.

Of course South would have doubled four spades and defeated it very badly. Instead, North played five hearts doubled and went down three tricks. South had created a tremendous swing, but North's meddling put the wrong side on the receiving end.

The hand, unusual as it may appear, does teach one sound lesson; Permit the hand which has taken control—in this case South—to keep it.

Whale, Penguins, Octopus Provide Educational Treat for Children

Atlanta children are to see the largest visitor this city ever had.

"Colossus," the giant whale which will be brought here Saturday for a two-week stay, will be shown to all children who present the coupon below and five cents at the 100-foot long especially constructed car which will be parked at Pryor and Wall streets, just opposite the Kimball House.

The preserved body of the giant mammal, which will be accompanied here by a contingent of live penguins, has attracted wide attention everywhere it has been shown. It was caught off the California coast two years ago and has been the subject of considerable scientific study.

The whale weighs 68 tons, more than 10 large elephants. It is 55 feet long and the job of loading him even into the specially built car was a feat. In addition to the whale and penguins there also will be a flea circus, a sea elephant and a giant octopus in the educational display.

Education Chief in East Indies Here on Year's Tour of Nation

Dr. B. Shrieke, general director of education in the Dutch East Indies, is visiting Atlanta on an extended survey of schools and colleges in the United States as a guest of the Julius Rosenwald foundation.

Dr. Shrieke has obtained a year's leave of absence from his post in Batavia, Java, to make the study, with the hope of drawing some valuable conclusions and proposing improvements, particularly in negro education. So far, Dr. Shrieke has visited schools in New York, Washington, Chicago and New Orleans, but his main work is to be done in the south, the educator said.

"It is too early in my survey to draw any conclusions or make any new proposals," said Dr. Shrieke in an interview Monday night, "but before the year is out I hope to have something of value from my visits to negro schools in this section."

Dr. Shrieke's directorship in the Dutch East Indies covers a conglomeration of nationalities, he said. Mixed with some 60,000,000 natives, about 3,000,000 Chinese and a lesser number of various other nationalities inhabit the islands. Whenever possible, Dr. Shrieke explained, the white people send their children to Holland to be educated, but when this cannot be done they attend the schools with the natives. He said that he hopes to learn many useful things to apply to his own school system from his study of negro education in the south.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools, entertained Dr. Shrieke Monday with trips to various Atlanta schools, both white and negro, and the two educators will continue their visits today. Dr. Shrieke visited Neil's Gap, Blue Ridge, and other scenic sections of north Georgia Sunday, and is unstinted in his praise of the natural beauty of the country. He also complimented Atlantans on leaving so many trees standing in the outskirts of the downtown section.

Dr. Shrieke will speak at 7 o'clock tonight before a group of graduate students and faculty members of Emory University in the university cafeteria.

THE SECOND QUESTION A DOCTOR ASKS....

Here is some information that has relieved whole families from Constipation

When anyone is "out of sorts" the doctor's first question is about the bowels. And the second, what is being taken to help them. Doctors use laxatives, and expect you to use them. But they prefer a liquid laxative. Do you know why?

Doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives because they've seen the damage sometimes done by highly concentrated drugs in the form of pills or tablets! They know that a properly made liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative) does not do this harm. And they use liquid laxatives to relieve the bowels, because the dose can be easily regulated.

What to Use

There is a preparation of fine herbs, pure pepsin, cascara, and senna which does away with all need of harsh cathartics. The active senna in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is laxative enough for any adult, mild enough for any child. And there are other valuable ingredients in this delightful syrup.

Syrup Pepsin will usually relieve a case of constipation overnight. If a further dose is necessary, you give a smaller dose, each time less, until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all!

If you have a youngster who doesn't eat, doesn't gain, gets upset and bilious no matter how careful you are about the diet—don't resort to strong cathartics which may only make matters worse.

Make this Test!

If you are "not yourself" because of a constipated condition, don't blame it on your blood condition, or your age. Try the help of Syrup Pepsin until you are relieved and nature restores your regularity.

When your bowels continue then to move regularly, comfortably, and completely every day—you'll know why most doctors favor a liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

My husband, who is a druggist, first recommended Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to me. It has always helped me and made me feel better. I have used it as a laxative for the entire family for 22 years.

Future of U. S. Depends on Youth-Training, Walter W. Head Tells Boy Scout Banquet

Walter W. Head, of St. Louis, Mo., national president of the Boy Scouts of America, Monday night was the honor guest and principal speaker at a banquet given by the Atlanta council of scouts. Mr. Head is shown seated at the right above discussing plans of the Atlanta organization with Dr. Herman L. Turner, president of the Atlanta council, who is seated at the left. The other officials are, left to right: W. A. Dobson, Atlanta scout executive; C. L. Emerson, past president of the Atlanta council, and K. G. Bentz, regional scout executive. Staff photo by George Cornett.

"The status of our country and the condition of our people in future years depend largely upon the methods which we now use in training the youth of our country," Walter W. Head, president of the national council of Boy Scouts of America, said at a dinner Monday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club at which he was honor guest and prinicpal speaker.

Mr. Head, in addition to his Boy Scout affiliation, is a nationally known figure in insurance, banking and business. The dinner in his honor marked the annual meeting of the Atlanta Boy Scout council.

"We have been bequeathed a good heritage," said Mr. Head. "We must train ourselves and our youth to fight, not with arms and bloodshed, but with good-will and brotherhood, to bring about international as well as national well-being and peace."

W. A. Dobson "broke the ice" at the dinner with his novel "get acquainted" method before turning the meeting over to Dr. Herman L. Turner, Atlanta minister, and president of the Atlanta council, who presided at the dinner attended by more than 400 Scouts, Scout leaders and parents.

Entertainment was furnished by the Morehouse quartet, a novel kitchen band composed of Scouts' mothers and a number of Scout songs. Eagle Scout badges were awarded 44 Scouts and Scoutmasters who have attained the rank during the year. The golden key award was presented Freeman Self, Scoutmaster of Troop 22, and silver beavers were awarded L. E. Mansfield, Scout director, and W. E. Corley, Scoutmaster of Troop 25.

A report of the last year's progress was made by Dr. Turner, followed by re-election of officers for the coming year as follows: Dr. Turner, president; T. W. Moore and W. D. Hoffman, vice presidents; A. L. Myers, commissioner; A. G. Maxwell, treasurer, and Fred Gould, secretary.

The total for the year thus far is $13,149,341, an increase of $1,670,144 over the same time last year. The rate of collection apparently made it certain that the $15,000,000 forecast early in the summer by Mr. Harrison would be passed.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Can you tell me why a man expects his wife to take a little bit of money that he doles out to her and run his house on the same scale as a neighbor's home is run when she has three times the amount of money? I scrimp and save and use scraps, try to vary my meals and give my husband dainty food. For thanks he makes odious comparisons between ours and the house next door. It does seem that he would realize that the difference is in the husbands, not in the housekeepers. I am sick of it and ready to tell him to find somebody else who can do the job to suit his fastidious taste.

DISGUSTED.

Answer: Says a humorous woman: Any man will fight about food if you give him a chance. One about the price, another about the preparation, another about the way it is served and most of them about the quality and the quantity of it. There is an interesting psychology here, as well as a natural physiology. The old adage that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach is true and his marriage does not cancel his fondness for good food. Well and comfortably fed, he is likely to be amiable just as the average animal is. The psychology of the matter is this: Marketing, cooking and serving the meal is distinctly the wife's job as truly as making the money is the man's job. Every husband expects perfection of his wife in this province regardless of the difficulties she has to overcome. (In much the same way as she expects him to make a comfortable living regardless of business exigencies). When he doesn't get it he raises a row.

If he comes home cross and tired the poor dinner is the straw that breaks the camel's back. If he gets up in the morning fretted with the thought of what lies ahead and his breakfast is not ready this furnishes him a fine opportunity to blow off. If he comes home unexpectedly at noon time and finds nothing but scraps on the table he is disappointed and lets it be known, to the annoyance of his wife.

Even deeper than this lies the tendency of human nature when irritated to punish a loved one by putting the finger on a sensitive point. So the man who feels a sense of failure in one way or another and feels guilty toward his wife in consequence attacks her about a matter that every woman is sensitive about—her housekeeping. He can always draw fire by critiicizing the food on the table. He can always punish his wife by implying that she is extravagant, or that she exercises poor judgment in the choice of meat and vegetables, or that she does not vary her meals.

A meticulous housekeeper tells an amusing story of an experience she had with her husband who is very fastidious about his food. He complained on several occasions that the vegetables contained too much butter and cream, that she had an excess of fried food and that the French dressing was too oily. She cut out the fried chicken and had it broiled, cooked the green vegetables in salt water and made French dressing with a little oil and a great deal of lemon juice. Finally she said her butter and cream bill was cut half in two and her food was not fit to eat. One day her husband called her to come up town and have lunch with him. He ordered fried pork chops, fairly swimming in grease, string beans cooked with salt pork and a tomato salad with both French dressing and mayonnaise. When the luncheon was put before them she said not a word but got madder and madder as the meal progressed. They went out of the restaurant and had a big row. She told him that she never wanted to hear a peep out of him about rich food on her table and from that time on he might expect to eat butter, cream and lard used in liberal quantities.

But why get rid of a husband because he cuts up about food? Another would likely do the same thing. Much better for a woman to go along, do the best she can and take the consequences.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I have been married for eight years to a man I do not love. At sixteen I was engaged to be married to another man and we had a lovers' quarrel. He went away, was gone for a year and returned two days before I was married. I knew that I could never love anybody but him, but I went ahead with my plans and married my husband. No word has passed between me and the old sweetheart. When we meet we smile at each other and pass on. But, oh, the words that rise to my lips! Is there nothing to do but smile and pass on?

C.

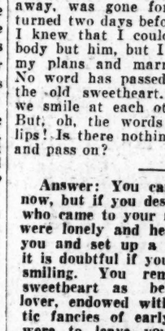

Answer: You can at least smile now, but if you deserted a husband who came to your rescue when you were lonely and heartsick, married you and set up a home with you, it is doubtful if you would feel like smiling. You remember the old sweetheart as being the perfect lover, endowed with all the romantic fancies of early youth. If you were to leave your husband and marry him you would discover, after eight years had passed, that life would be pretty much the same as it now is; not all moonlight and roses and romantic love but a humdrum existence most of the time, sometimes sad, sometimes gay, sometimes on the hilltop of happiness and sometimes in the valley of doubt and despair. There would be always the shadow of the other man whom you married and deserted coming between you and the second husband.

Smile and pass on, young woman. There is something else you can do but if you do it you are certain to regret it.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

STURTEVANT LECTURES IN GARDEN CENTER

The first of three lectures by Robert Sturtevant, outstanding landscape architect in the east, was given at the Garden Center yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Sturtevant was introduced by Mrs. Sam Inman. The subject of the lecture was "Planning a Garden."

A large and representative audience was charmed by Mr. Sturtevant's ability to present the subject in such a delightfully informal style. His lecture was most helpful and entertaining and his audience is looking forward to the next two lectures on this most interesting subject of gardening.

The lecture this afternoon will be on "Planting a Garden," and Mr. Sturtevant will be introduced by Mrs. Bolling Hall Sassnett, of the Iris Garden Club. The lecture Wednesday will be "Maintaing a Garden," and the speaker will be introduced by Mrs. Malcolm Fleming of the Peachtree Garden Club. These lectures are given in the tea room on Rich's sixth floor at 3:30 o'clock and are free to the public.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

by ROY VICKERS

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Major Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is in jail for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Colin was alone at the table with the Canadian when the lights went out and he was struck in the throat by a table-knife. Chief witness against Colin was Major Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. He plots Colin's escape by taking Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Nobody looks closely at prisoners, he explains, and warders are frequently changed. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon in Wales. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited a fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting a baby, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen's, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order, placing Rhoda under her charge. Caermaen and his solicitor plan to investigate Stornack. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where her son is born. Her mother sends the baby away. Rhoda arranges to see him and have him properly cared for. She and her mother return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days to have him identify a confederate of Stornack's. Thinking Rhoda is still in France he plans to fly there. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

In a minute the din grew to a roar as the plane ran forward on its wheels and almost before she was aware of it they had left the ground.

The pilot passed in a half spiral over the aerodrome. Rhoda, looking out of the window, watched, fascinated, while the ground slipped away beneath her.

Then she clutched Colin's arm.

"Look! There father!" she exclaimed, but he could not hear her.

The little figure stood by itself near the entrance hall. As she watched, her father took out his handerkerchief and waved. Rhoda waved back and a second later he was lost to view.

It was Mrs. Cornboise herself who had insisted on her husband waiting outside. When it came to dealing with minor officials he was an encumbrance.

Rhoda's aeroplane was already a tiny spec in the sky when Mrs. Cornboise rejoined her husband.

"Of course, Rhoda has become very clever at every kind of deceit," she said grimly. "And she used to be such a straightforward child. She could not really have come here because there has been no liner leaving and none will leave again today. Only a very deceitful girl would think of a trick like that."

"Your conclusions would be justfied if you rbasis of fact were not wholly illusory. Rhoda may be deceitful but as yet we have no evidence thereof. She came to the aerodrome exactly as she intended."

"How do you know?"

"You've seen her! Why didn't you do something? Why didn't you tell me at once?"

"I saw no reason for haste. There is no means of stopping her save by applying to the royal air force to shoot her down. Such a request would inevitably be met with refusal. In the circumstances therefore—"

Mr. Cornboise found he was talking to himself, for his wife had rushed back into the hall. This time she asked for the departmental manager.

"An aeroplane left here within the last few minutes," she announced. "I would be obliged if you would give me the names of the persons on board and their destination. If necessary I can obtain official backing in support of my request."

"There is no need for official backing," said the manager. "The company does not accept confidential instructions except from the government. All flights with passengers, pilot and destination are recorded in this book, which is open to public inspection. Allow me to show it to you."

The undermanager showed her a record of the number and details of the aeroplane, the name of the pilot, and the fact that it was privately chartered by a Mr. Smith, that with him was his wife and that their destination was Paris.

Mrs. Cornboise could do nothing but thank him as politely as she was turning away when she was struck with an idea.

"I have very strong reasons for wishing to know when Mr. and Mrs. Smith—" she gulped on the name—"are likely to return."

"I cannot tell you now, but you can easily find out," said the manager. "When any aeroplane intends to land here from the continent—whether our own or others—a message is telegraphed to us in advance, giving the expected time of arrival. If you will go to that window marked 'Telegrams' you can arrange to have a telegram send to you as soon as instructions are received here."

Mrs. Cornboise thanked him and went to the window. She addressed a telegram to herself at the Dangerfield hotel.

"I think, my dear,' said Mr. Cornboise, "we had better go back to the hotel."

"I will go back to the hotel," answered his wife. "You must go to your club—and stay there. I will send on your things. You must stay there until I send you word that Rhoda has come back. We must account for Rhoda's absence! I shall tell people that she has gone with you to see your aged aunt."

Meanwhile, the little plane was tearing its way through the air. In 10 minutes they could see the channel and in another 10 minutes they were flying over it.

These two determined lovers watched it all with a casual eye. They were snatching at the love that the organized might of civilization would deny them. And they could afford to care nothing for their circumstances.

In time the machine jerked and bumped them into the aerodrome at Paris and they promptly forgot it as they hurried in a car to the nursery.

As the car turned into the drive, Colin saw babies and young children on the lawn, as Rhoda had seen them on her first visit. But the sight of them seemed to fill him with alarm.

"Rhoda! Suppose they mix the labels or something—and give us the wrong baby?"

"Do you think I wouldn't know my own child?" she teased him.

"Well, yes—no. I don't know. One has heard of the thing happening. I suppose, if you look at the thing sensibly, one young baby must be awfully like another."

"Not ours!" asserted Rhoda. And then: "Have you forgotten that he has a mark above his left elbow?"

"Phew! That ought to clinch it," said Colin with vast relief.

Five minutes later, when Rhoda had taken her baby from his cot and handed him to his father, the latter was guilty of the most brazen inconsistency.

"By jove, yes? He's ours right enough. I could have picked him out myself outsof thousands." He did not even to see the "mother mark."

For an hour these two attained forgetful happiness. For an hour they lived in an enchanted world, which was nothing else than the utterly commonplace business of parenthood. Like all young fathers, Colin made all the startling discoveries that permit a woman to smile indulgently at man's incredible ignorance of his own species. This marvelous baby, it appeared could grip with his hands and even make noises with his voice.

He had the drawbacks, in the circumstances, of keeping very early hours. Before the afternoon was well over his parents were advised to relinquish him in his own interests.

"We can put in a long day here tomorrow," said Colin as they drove back to Paris. "And we could just slip over the morning after to say good-by. Jack and I change over again at midnight on Saturday. Isn't it marvelous to think that today is still only Thursday. And now let's put Paris on its mettle."

"O, Collin! It will be like Wales."

"Yes, rather!" he agreed. "But with a difference. There's been a ray of hope in the meantime. Nothing much, and for heaven's sake don't build any castles on it."

He told her of his identification of the man sitting with Jarroman, the solicitor.

"I haven't the least idea what it all amounts to," he finished. "But Jack seemed to think it was fearfully important."

Jack Caermaen had not mentioned to Colin his suspicions of Stornack. He knew too well that there is always the risk of a man in Colin's position getting hysterical or delirious and blurting out what had better be kept secret.

"And look here, my French is rotten. You tell the driver to find the Hotel Matarasse. It was arranged that I should put up there—in case Jarroman should wish to communicate with me."

Jarroman did wish to communicate with them. He traveled by the night boat and caught them just as they were leaving the hotel on the following morning.

For Rhoda, meeting him as "Mrs. Smith," there was a certain amount of awkwardness. But, whatever Jarroman knew or had guessed of the truth, he proceeded to put them at once at their ease.

"I understand that you and Colin were secretly married before his trouble," said Jarroman when they were all together in a private sitting room. He hurried on: "Now I expect he has told you what we did yesterday and I hope you aren't building too much on it. It amounts to very little."

Colin laughed.

"Look here, old man, you haven't come all the way over here to see that we're properly miserable about it."

"I came over chiefly in order to see—er—Mrs.—er—"

"Rhoda!" said Colin.

"— to see Rhoda, if she doesn't mind. I gather it is somewhat difficult to see her in England—that is, without Mrs. Cornboise, who I feel would not be very helpful."

"But what can I do?" asked Rhoda.

"That will depend very largely on your memory. Now I want you to forget Paris and Colin and concentrate hard on your own childhood. Do you remember anything about your mother's brother—Peter Shepworth?"

"It doesn't need any concentration for that!" returned Rhoda. "I must have been eight or nine when I last saw Uncle Peter. Then he went away—to Canada or somewhere like that. Is he in trouble? Mother never speaks of him. I remember now—"

As she stopped Jarroman prompted her.

"Yes, Rhoda? You remember—what? Anything that you can remember may be of great importance to Colin. Just tell me all you can about this Uncle Peter of yours."

"It'll all amount to nothing," said Rhoda despondently. "He was just—a jolly sort of uncle. He used to turn up suddenly from nowhere and bring me funny sorts of presents. Of course my memory is a childish memory. He used to be good at inventing games. And he used to take me for long walks. And then—"

"And then, Rhoda?"

"The last time he turned up—suddenly as usual—he didn't stay. I think he must have had some kind of quarrel with my parents. I remember his snatching up his hat and stumping out of the hall. And I ran after him and caught him in the drive. And I think I said, 'Uncle Peter, you aren't going away without speaking to me, are you?' He was looking rather fierce and I believe I was a bit frightened.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

MAKING ICE.

It is not much trouble for Nature to make ice—she can do it even on a summer day. When moist air rises high enough, snow, sleet or hail may be formed in it during July or August. This is likely to melt before reaching the earth, but hail often comes down even on a mild day. I have seen snow falling on a mountain top in the middle of summer.

Clever men have learned to make ice even in warm weather; and we do not need to depend on what has been cut during the past winter from frozen lakes or rivers. The so-called "natural" ice has not passed from use in our homes; but it seems oe passing. "Home-made" ice is coming to be the thing of the day, and has grown more popular since electric ice boxes have become less costly.

More than a century and a half ago, a British scientist made ice with the help of a vacuum machine. This machine pumped air out of a tank partly filled with water. Some of the water was turned into vapor, and the rest of it was frozen.

Other men worked on ice machines, but they did not prove very successful for a long period. In 1834 Jacob Jenkins worked out a system of compressing a liquid in pipes, and then turning it into a vapor. His plan was followed, in a general way, by later inventors; and it is the basis of most modern ice-making machines.

A large "ice factory" was started at New Orleans in 1866, and it is noted as the first of its kind on this continent. Many others have been built since that date, and much machine-made ice has been sold.

The liquid most commonly used for ice-making in earlier days was ammonia, and it still finds a place in the industry. Sulphur dioxide has taken the place of ammonia to a large extent, however, and there are other liquids which do the work well.

The cooling is brought about by taking heat out of the ice box. The liquid passes through pipes, and then expands until it is a gas. It is the gas which draws the heat from the place which is to be cooled. Later the gas is condensed back into a liquid, and the substance is used over and over again.

Electricity supplies the power for most self-acting refrigerators, but gas has become important as well. A gas flame, plus liquid ammonia, hydrogen gas and a system of pipes work to cool an ice box, and to turn water into ice. What would ancient folk have said if they had been told that fire could help make ice!

It is the aim of Hadassah to hold these meetings once a month so as to create greater interest in affairs Jewish.

Mrs. Warren's Play Is Aptly Presented At Moreland School

Talent for writing and directing children's plays possesed by Mrs. Green Warren was attested yesterday when her play, "The Magic Broom," was presented by Moreland school pupils at the school auditorium. The audience, composed of a group of children from nurseries and homes for children in Atlanta, watched with rapt attention the performance which was given with a finish that would do credit to much older actors. The play, with the same cast, will be presented again this evening at the school P.-T. A. meeting.

Mrs. Warren, who is a prominent member of the Atlanta Junior League and league chairman for children's plays, took a course in play-writing and directing last summer at Oglethorpe University with several other league members and at that time wrote this clever little play, which faculty members of the school requested for presentation there. Mrs. Warren and a group of Junior Leaguers directed the play, together with a trio of teachers, including Misses J. Clifton, L. Ford and B. Cockrell. Miss Margaret Fraser, another Junior Leaguer, played the piano for the songs and was in charge of musical effects.

Sparkling and sprightly, the theme of "The Magic Broom" provides constant action, focusing the enthusiasm of the youthful audience throughout. Really more an operetta than play, the production featured solo and chorus songs, in addition to a number of attractive and well executed dancing numbers. Jean Smith, as the Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe, proved her ability as a character actress and took one of the leading parts, with the story revolving around the many children who lived with her in a magical land of make-believe. Gloria Hailey took the part of Gloria, the little girl rescued from the gaily costumed pirate band by Robin Hood and his Merry Men, while Joyce Carter as a Morning Glory and Jane Carey as a Butterfly gave splendid solo dances.

Bright-hued costumes and well-drilled ensemble work contributed to the attractive effect of the play, which included many familiar Mother Goose characters in new roles, as well as the pirates and elves, and the Old Woman's numerous children. Souvenir programs designed by members of the sixth grade were remarkably artistic, each bearing a colored picture of one or more characters in the play with the magic broom worked in the design. Each program was different, exhibiting the planning and workmanship of the child who created it.

Eyeglasses in Great Demand For Gifts This Christmas

Opticians all over the country anticipate record-breaking demand for eyeglasses this Christmas, according to an executive of Atlanta's oldest optical establishment. We have made preparation, he said, for a much larger volume of business than ever before, due to the widespread demand for the improved lenses and new style mountings and frames, so different to the old style eyewear.

We have noticed an increasing demand each year for gift glasses, said Mr. Sisson, president of A. K. Hawkes Co., 67 Whitehall street, and look forward to the approaching holiday season for the largest business we have ever experienced. Asked what is causing the increasing demand, Mr. Sisson said it is mainly due, he thinks, to the vast improvement scientists have made in the quality and effectiveness of lenses, also to the new style frames and mountings which are much more becoming.

Also, he said, people are more practical-minded in the selection of gifts. No doubt but the business depression brought many people to the realization, for the first time that things most needed are the most sensible to give a relative or friend.

It is especially true of those seeking gifts for the older people. Most of them are really very much in need of new lenses, as it is essential for lenses to be changed about every two years with people when they are past middle age. Viewing the matter sensibly, he said, a relative or friend is directed to come here for eye examination and fitting. The glasses are then presented at Christmas time just as if the gift was wholly unexpected. Left to us, we see to all of the details and deliver glasses at the time and address specified.—(adv.)

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.—(adv.)

Coach Alexander Plans Little Scrimmage for Game.

This was apparent yesterday when the squad engaged in only a light signal drill at Grant field and Coach Alexander announced afterward that there would not be any heavy work this week.

"We're done with our hard scrimmaging this season. Our lineup is fairly well set and all we can do is hope there will be no injuries or sickness, for we are terribly short of men," he stated.

There is one serious casualty in the Tech camp, however. That is "Moocho" Lyons, the big center from Ball Ground, Ga., who puts a lot of weight into the middle of the Tech line.

Lyons received several bruised ribs in the game with Florida and may not play against Georgia Saturday. Charley Preston, the sophomore, is Tech's first string center, but Lyons was the main relief man.

The Jackets will work lightly today against Georgia plays and finish up work with a light scrimmage on Thursday.

Outside of Lyons, Tech had no injuries from the Florida game, which the Jackets lost, 13-12 after leading the 'Gators, 12-0, at one stage.

MEHRE ORDERS SECRET WORK

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 26.—Coach Harry Mehre today gave orders for "strictly secret" practice for the rest of the week as Georgia prepares for the last game of the year, which is that of the annual clash with Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets.

Dave "Butch" McCullough, star guard, who broke his arm in the Tulane game, returned to practice this afternoon minus the plaster cast and will probably get to play against Georgia's traditional rival. McCullough, who is an Atlanta boy, has not been able to play in a Tech game for more than three minutes in his four years at Georgia.

Another player, Charlie Harrold, sophomore end, who was thought to be out for the rest of the season with a charley horse, also returned this afternoon.

EVERY PLAY.

Both players will strengthen Coach Mehre's forces. Coach Harry Mehre, incidentally, is planning to use every possible card in his football deck in an endeavor to defeat Tech this year in Sanford stadium Saturday. The ban on visitors and the return of McCullough and Harrold are only dueces in the deck, while the aces will pop up Saturday, Mehre hopes.

Defeating Georgia Tech will wind up a very successful season for Georgia despite the losses to North Carolina, Tulane and Alabama. Florida, Yale, North Carolina State and Auburn have fallen before the Bulldogs on successive Saturdays and Georgia hopes to add Tech to the string of victories this Saturday.

The Bulldogs emerged from the 18-to-0 win over the Auburn Tigers minus any serious injuries although Charley Opper, right tackle, received a sprained toe, an injury which Opper himself finds difficulty in explaining how he got. Alex Ashford, the diminutive left end, and Alf Anderson, who shined as an adept passer in the Tiger game, have battle-scarred noses.

MINOT OUT.

Al Minot, the right half that carried Georgia's torch while Cy Grant was out with a sprained shoulder, is definitely out of the Tech game with a severe charley horse, according to the coaches. Every effort is being made to get Minot in shape but it is doubtful if he will play.

Trainer Clarence Jones asked Minot to trot around the training room this afternoon and see how the leg reacted. Minot, in his abbreviated costume, looked like a burlesque dancer as he shuffled along. "I can't make any touchdowns like that," the halfback said.

A long lecture preceded the practice today in which the Bulldogs heard the reports of the Georgia Tech plays that were used in the Florida game, which Tech lost, 13 to 12.

T. H. S. Five Starts Work Monday

Tech High has issued the first call for basketball practice next Monday on the Henry Grady court. Coach Tolbert will again be in charge of the squad and will be assisted by Professor Olson.

Only "Red" Pittman, from the 1933 team, will be missing when the roll is called Monday.

Two valuable additions to the squad will be Doyal Butler, former All-North Georgia Interscholastic conference forward from North Fulton, and Enloe, a former resident of Nashville, Tenn.

Members of the last year's team include Schutte and Towery, guards; Watson and Sisk, centers, and Tinsley, forward. Butler and Enloe are scheduled to battle for the vacant forward position. Both will be assured of varsity places.

Of course the present plans are likely to be changed considerably when all the candidates are called together, for it is reported that an abundance of material has come up from the junior high schools.

BREAK O' DAY!

By Ralph McGill

Those Techs Have Turned the Other Cheek Eight Times!

Will the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals please do something about this!

Here is poor old Tech, defeated eight consecutive games, and what does a Jacksonville paper have to say in announcing the game last Saturday?

Is it possible to cordially hate a team which has been defeated eight times in one season? Is there no quality of mercy abroad in the land?

When poor old Tech rolls into town is it possible to stir up any hate, to say nothing of cordial hatred? Only a man who would push young ducklings into the pond, steer a blind man in front of a trolley car, rob widows and orphans could muster up the sharp condiments of hatred for the 1934 Tech team.

Rather should the Jackets be received with the benisons of a heart overflowing with thanks; with open arms and a salute of gratitude.

Because the Jackets this season have been struck on one cheek and turned the other. Not once, but eight times.

They have been the cheerful little saviors of the jobs of coaches whose teams have been losing. They have made home-coming day safe for the alumni and coach.

Wives of coaches, whose teams have been taking it on the chin each week, have cheered the children by saying, "Never mind, children, Tech plays here next week and father will cease kicking you out of his path after that game."

The dog, after peering at the headlines, has got his tail out from between his legs, forgiven the bruised ribs and told the dog next door, "The Old Man won't be so tough after Saturday. Those Techs are going to play his team."

Yes, pals, the Techs have gone about doing good and now, to learn they are "those cordially hated Atlantans" is too much.

Is there no such quality as pity?

AND ANOTHER ITEM.

It was just yesterday afternoon. There was no sun. The smoke and fog hung outside the window. It was a very glum afternoon. And in addition, of course, was a Monday afternoon.

The telephone rang.

"Why are you Atlanta papers putting Georgia ahead of Florida in the standings," asked the man. "They have each won two and lost two and Florida has tied one."

"That's it, the tie," he was told.

"A tie counts against the record?"

"Oh, yes, you will notice that the stories always refer to the leading teams as undefeated and untied."

"Well, I think Florida ought to be over Georgia. You Atlanta papers are always for Atlanta. Well, we beat Tech didn't we?"

"Yes, sir, you certainly did, sir."

(Ed. note—For polite telephone conversations call The Constitution.)

"And another thing, why don't you send men to cover the Florida games? You always send men with Tech and Georgia."

"Are you, kind sir, jesting?"

"No, all you Atlanta papers think about is Atlanta. And I think Florida ought to be ahead of Georgia."

"Well, you guys always go for Atlanta. Those standings are unfair."

"Well, sir, they are compiled by the esteemed Associated Press. Call them. And the Atlanta papers make a great effort to represent all teams."

"Don't try to kid me, you Atlanta papers are all for Atlanta. I know you. All the papers had the standings just like yours."

And that, so help me, is the conversation.

It was such a harsh day. If someone doesn't say a kind word I will bust right out crying. After saying kind words about almost everyone, this is too much.

ALABAMA NEEDS ONLY THE VANDY GAME.

Alabama needs only the Vanderbilt game on Thursday to receive the Rose Bowl invitation shortly afterward. Alabama will then be the one undefeated and untied team which is eligible for participation, Minnesota being barred by its own rules.

I do not see how Dr. Huey Long can call out the guard to halt this game but he may. The Alabama team will likely travel through Louisiana en route to California for the game. Dr. Long can, of course, halt the team, arrest Mr. Frank Thomas and his team and substitute the L. S. U. eleven. And send it on to the Bowl, f.o.b. collect.

Otherwise there does not seem to be chance for Dr. Long to block the game. Vanderbilt, can, of course.

Maybe it would be a good idea to have Dr. Long get out a writ ordering Vanderbilt to defeat Alabama on Thanksgiving Day at Birmingham.

This seems to be the only way the Commodores can do it. Dan McGugin and his aids have a good defensive team and one with a punt, a prayer and a pass. But Alabama has a punt, a pass and a magnificent running game and defense. And doubtless Mr. Frank Thomas could muster up a very passable prayer if the need arises.

So, I cannot see anyone winning the game but the Crimson Tide although the Commodores could win and the result be not as surprising as that of Indiana over Purdue and Texas Christian over Rice.

The underdog wins now and then but he has no business doing so. Although, at that, there is no finer feeling than to be one with the underdog and see him win. It helps out for the underdog to triumph now and then.

And it is smart to "expert" and pick the underdog to win. If he does people recall it. If he doesn't it is merely what was expected.

But it looks all Alabama on Thanksgiving Day.

"HELLO, BROTHER."

There is probably no truth to it at all but the story goes thusly:

"A football coach, whose team had been losing regularly, walked out into the backyard where the Thanksgiving Day turkey was penned, looking very glum.

The coach leaned over and looked at the turkey and the turkey eyed him, eye for eye.

And then, so they say, the turkey reached up a foot and said, "Shake, brother, I know how you feel."

CHIEF CHEWACKI.

That genial crack-pot, Chief Chewacki, is in town tonight to wrestle Paul Jones, the hero to the gals. The Chief made daffiness pay before Max Baer and Dizzy Dean thought of it. And in his way he is the best artist of them all.

INDIANS NAMED AS WEST TEAM FOR BOWL GAME

By Ted Smits.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Stanford was selected today to carry the banner of the west into the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. Speculation began at once as to the football team the Indians will name as an opponent.

Stanford was the standout aggregation of the Pacific coast, its record unmarred except for an early season 7-7 tie with Santa Clara. The Pacific Coast conference apparently found little trouble in nominating it for the second successive year. But no such clarity of thought exists in regard to the opponent.

Alabama, three times a Rose Bowl visitor, and a very successful one at that, appears to have rallied the strongest support locally, but there also is a quartet of strong eastern contenders in Colgate, Columbia, Temple and Pitt, to say nothing of Louisiana State, twice tied, but with an ardent supporter in its kingfish-senator-patron, Huey Long.

It is almost a foregone conclusion that Minnesota will not receive consideration because of a Big Ten rule against post season games.

Alabama and Minnesota are the only major gridiron teams of the season without defeats or ties and eliminating the "Big Ten" champions would seem to direct the choice of the southerners were it not for some potent sentimental reasons.

EAST FAVORED.

The case for the eastern possibilities may be stated as follows:

Columbia last New Year's defeated Stanford in the rain 7-0. The Indians would like a chance to erase that memory. Columbia was beaten this year only by Navy, but last year it was chosen despite a reverse at the hands of Princeton.

Colgate has lost to Ohio State's strong eleven, 10-7. It is coached by Andy Kerr, who once coached at Stanford to pave the way for Glenn (Pop) Warner, and his remark of several years ago when Colgate was passed up as a Rose Bowl team for Pittsburgh is still bandied about on the Pacific coast. At that time Kerr said: "Unbeaten, untied, unscored on and uninvited."

The temple has only a 6-6 tie with Indiana against it, but a strong reason for bidding the Philadelphia school is that it was to Temple that Warner went when he left Stanford two years ago.

Pittsburgh's only reverse was at the hands of Minnesota, 13-7, but there is a distinct bond with Stanford in that Jock Sutherland, the Pitt coach, played side by side with Claude (Tiny) Thornhill, Stanford coach, when both were linemen at Pittsburgh.

L. S. U. "OUT."

Louisiana State's 9-9 tie with Rice, and 14-14 deadlock with Southern Methodist University have served to minimize the chances of the southern outfit.

Returning to Alabama, a glance at the records show the Crimson Tide has performed better in the Rose Bowl than any other invader, defeating Washington, 20-19, in 1926, tying Stanford, 7-7, in 1927, and crushing Washington State, 24-0, in 1931.

Aside from its tie with Alabama, Stanford in the Rose Bowl lost to Notre Dame with its "Four Horsemen," 27-10, in 1925, defeated Pittsburgh, 7-6, in 1928, and lost to Columbia last year.

Stanford this year won undisputed claim to the Pacific Coast conference title, and bowled over Oregon State, Northwestern, Southern California, U. C. L. A., Washington and California.

Alabama, scoring more than 250 points to a meager 32 for its opponents, has downed among others Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky and Georgia Tech, and this Thursday must face Vanderbilt. It is probable that Stanford will not make its choice until after Thanksgiving Day.

B.H.S. Leaves For Miami Game

Boys' High undefeated city championship eleven will leave the city at 6 o'clock this morning for Miami, Fla., where Thursday the Purples will play Miami High. It will be the close of the 1934 season.

Boys' High is open for negotiations for a post-season game away from home. The trip to Miami today will be the only game away from home, except a game at Chattanooga and in appreciation of their great record this year the coaches would like very much to give the Purples another trip, preferably during the Christmas holidays.

Coaches Doyal, Keith and Butler had not announced the list of players making the trip last night, but there will be 25 players in addition to the three coaches, and managers, Joe Gershon and Jim Bagby Jr.

Methodist Teams Will Play Tonight

The only series of games to be played in the Methodist basketball leagues this week are scheduled for the Atlanta Athletic Club on Tuesday night. Four of the "A" league games will be played, one in the "B" league and Druid Hills girls meet the Calvary girls. Manhattan Plays L. S. U. in New York

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Louisiana State University's tentative football schedule for 1935, includes a game in New York with Manhattan College, was announced here by T. P. Heard, athletic director.

Other new games on the schedule are with Texas and Georgia, replacing Southern Methodist, George Washington and Tennessee, 1934 opponents.

Other games are carded with Vanderbilt, Rice, Arkansas, Mississippi State, University of Mississippi, Auburn and Tulane.

DUKE INVITED FOR MIAMI GAME

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 26.—(UP)—Duke University will be invited this week to represent the south in an intersectional football game here on New Year's Day.

The invitation will be extended by the city of Miami, sponsoring the orange blossom, which will become an annual winter classic.

At the time Huey Long's Tigers were invited to participate, it was announced that Coach Wallace Wade's Durham (N. C.) eleven was the city's second choice.

Pittsburgh and Colgate are the leading contenders from the east.

The University of Miami for several years has corresponded with Pennsylvania State relative to a New Year's game here. A definite agreement was never reached although Penn State expressed a willingness to enter the contest.

EMORY JUNIORS MEET SENIORS

Seniors and Juniors will meet at Emory in the next to the last game of the season. The Junior-Sophomore game, which was postponed from Saturday, will probably be played a week from Wednesday and will round out the intramural schedule.

At present the Juniors are leading the school league with two victories and two ties as against no losses. The Sophomores have only a last-minute loss at the hands of the Freshmen to mar their record. They tied the Juniors in their former encounter.

Wednesday's clash between the Seniors and Juniors will be the last game of the season for the seniors, who bowed to the Juniors, 13 to 0, in the opening game of the intramural season.

The Seniors are a much-improved aggregation over that which lost to the present league-leaders. After getting off to a slow start the Seniors showed much power in smashing the Freshmen twice, once 25-0, and last week, 31-0. They have also played a tie game with the Sophomores.

The senior backfield is slightly stronger than the highly touted Junior ground gainers, and should the Senior line be able to hold up under the pounding, a loss for the Juniors will probably result.

Even should the Juniors get by this obstacle, they will have the Sophomores to face in the final game, and the Sophomore line is regarded as the best in the league.

Tickets Go Fast For 'Frosh' Game

Reports from the advance ticket sale on the Tech-Georgia freshman football game at Grant field Thursday afternoon indicate a record crowd for the annual game for the benefit of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

Several sections in the west stand have been sold out and the 50-cent tickets also are going fast. The top price for the game is $1 for the east and west stands.

Committees working on the game report an even greater amount of enthusiasm than last year, when nearly 10,000 turned out to see the battle of the Bullpups and the Baby Jackets. The fact that both teams are strong this year and that neither team has played in the Atlanta vicinity has stirred interest.

The tickets are on sale at Muse's and Rich's and going fast. Everything is donated for this game, all proceeds of which go to the hospital fund. Last year money derived from the game enabled the hospital to open a new ward and admit 30 more children for treatment for deformities.

The stadium, the services of officials, ushers, ticket sellers, etc., all are donated to this great cause. The Ford Motor Company has volunteered 10 automobiles to transport the Georgia team from Athens free of charge.

'Poor Old Tech' Has 'It' Despite a Bad Season

John Public Squawks About Losing Team But He Is There at Every Game.

By Jimmy Jones.

They may be battered, tattered and worn—even scorned—but Georgia Tech's lean golden shadow of one-time football greatness still remains a potent box office appeal in the south.

The advertisements tell us that "the name is the thing." And this must be true in football, for Georgia Tech's team of 1934 has no riot of color, no dazzling attack and none of the things that are supposed to give a team box office power.

But believe it or not, the jaded Jackets, whose next and final game is with their old-time adversary, the Georgia Bulldogs next Saturday at Athens, have managed this year to set a couple of stadium attendance records for out-of-town opponents, despite the fact that they are in the act of concluding their poorest season of history.

The first of these records was set at Durham, N. C., on October 20, when Tech went up to play Duke. The Jackets had not looked so hot against Vanderbilt the week before, but the turnout of the hosts was amazing. At game time one gazed about upon a throng of 30,000 people—a new record for the new Duke stadium.

Last Saturday Mr. Alexander gathered up his remnants after seven straight losses and went down to Gainesville, to play the University of Florida.

ALL "STEAMED UP."

Imagine one's amazement to arrive in that placid college town and find the alumni and the citizenry all worked up and seething with the spirit of old-fashioned vengeance. One would have surmised that the Rose Bowl champion was coming down to play instead of poor old Tech which had just dropped seven in a row.

The fact that Tech had beaten Florida three times in the last three years and that Florida had won only one game from Tech in 22 years of campaigning, of course was fuel for the home-coming fires. And the Florida press, which is faithful to a fault, had heaped on a little vitroil, tinged with such cayennish references as "the hated Atlantans," etc.

This was all well and good and none of the Atlantans succeeded in working up a hate for the Floridans, but the bewildered Jackets must have wondered: "Are we Alabama or L. S. U.? Or is Coach Alex Huey Long or Theo G. Bilbo?"

BIGGEST CROWD.

At any rate the Jackets went out and played the game before Gainesville's biggest and most colorful football crowd since the game with Alabama in 1930, which set the Florida stadium record of 17,000.

The Jackets (and Florida of course) played before only about 1,000 less than the record, the attendance being conservatively set at 16,000, although the Florida publicity man immediately announced it at 18,000, which would have beaten the record.

Florida's sectional pride is pardonable. In fact it smacks of the California pride more and more each year. But imagine turning out that many people to see Tech play, admitting that most of them were there to see the Jackets knocked galley-west.

It seems that the hapless Jackets have been the home-coming sacrifice for practically all of its southern opponents this year. A lot of young coaches are becoming famous for beating Tech their first year out.

It is no secret that Wallace Wade, while he was the coach at Alabama, became nationally famous—first for beating Tech and Georgia—and then the Rose Bowl team.

Tech's biggest crowd at home this year has been the 17,000 which turned out for the game with Alabama, which surprised a lot of people, including some of the Tech officials.

You still hear a lot of people saying that they wouldn't walk across the street to see Tech play football this year. But a lot of them are not only walking across the street, they are riding miles and laying it on the line to see Tech play.

It may be an advantage to be "a hated Atlantan" after all.

Bernard South Loses Daughter

Bernard South, well-known baseball player, lost his 2-year-old daughter, Joan Charlotte, who died Monday afternoon at the residence, 155 Clairmount avenue, Decatur.

In addition to her parents, the child is survived by her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Battle, of Decatur. The funeral services will be held Wednesday at a time to be announced later. H. M. Patterson will be in charge of the services.

Tennessee Honors Coach Neyland

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Coach Robert R. Neylands, the man who put Tennessee on the football map, will have a special day in his honor when the Volunteers play their final game of the season with Louisiana State here December 8.

It will be known as "Neyland Day." Neyland, an army major, will say farewell to Tennessee football on that day as he leaves in January for a two-year assignment in the Panama Canal zone. He has been head football coach at Tennessee nine years.

The movement to honor Coach Neyland was announced today by James N. Cox, of Cookeville, president of the University of Tennessee Alumni Association. Funds are now being raised to purchase a farewell gift for the Volunteers' coach.

CHICAGO BEARS SET NEW MARK

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears, rolling merrily along toward another professional football title, today had established a new scoring record for the National league with 257 points in 11 games and two more yet to go.

PATRICK'S TEAM SEEKS TO EVEN SERIES AT 8-ALL

Bears Have Won Last Four Games of Old Rivalry.

By Jack Troy.

The year following the armistice, Oglethorpe and Mercer started a gridiron battle of their very own and for 16 years it has gone ahead without interruption.

Thursday's Thanksgiving Day skirmish at Hermance field will be the 16th game. Mercer has won eight, Oglethorpe seven in this time-honored series.

The Stormy Petrels, of Peachtree, who haven't crashed through with a victory since 1929, are favored over the Orange and Black this year and hence have a chance to even the count at eight wins apiece.

The first year of the rivalry, 1919, produced the largest score. Oglethorpe won, 73 to 0. The second largest score was produced in the following year, the Petrels winning again, 42 to 0.

1925—Oglethorpe 7; Mercer 6.
1926—Oglethorpe 25; Mercer 0.
1925—Oglethorpe 6; Mercer 21.
1926—Oglethorpe 7; Mercer 31.
1927—Oglethorpe 7; Mercer 31.
1929—Oglethorpe 26; Mercer 0.
1930—Oglethorpe 0; Mercer 3.
1931—Oglethorpe 0; Mercer 30.
1932—Oglethorpe 6; Mercer 7.
1934—Oglethorpe 7; Mercer 7.

Mercer, with a record of four straight victories since 1929, has struck up the longest consecutive winning march. Three in a row for either team was the longest previous streak.

The past games show that anything can happen. To be established the favorite in this annual state rivalry can likely as not mean that the other team will win.

Oglethorpe has the best record and apparently the stronger team, but Mercer is always a threat. This is attested by the Bears' great intersectional over Washington and Jefferson.

Petrels Prepare For Bloodworth.

Going on the theory that Bloodworth will tell, Oglethorpe hit the effigy of the Mercer star in resounding fashion yesterday afternoon.

Bloodworth, who is a medium-sized streak, ran 42 yards for a touchdown against Centre Saturday. He further added to his laurels and a claim to a position on the All-S. I. A. A. team by passing to Gene NeSmith, end, for a touchdown and then adding extra point.

Seeking strength in the line to breach the gap left by the injury of Jim Darracott, varsity tackle, who won't play, Coach Patrick has been drilling Sam Leslie, halfback, at a guard. Kelly Byars probably will start in Darracott's position. Rudy McNamara, regular end, also is lost, and will be replaced by Tubby Thompson.

Several new plays were added and partially mastered. They will be in working order by Thursday.

One of the features of the recent drills has been the return to form of Cecil (Shine on Harvest) Moon, a rangy halfback. Then, too, Captain Frank Mitrick has recovered from a shoulder injury and is ready to start.

The Petrels, victory-starved in the Mercer series, will seek their sixth victory of the year Thursday, accomplishment of which would give the young alumni coaches, Patrick and Harry Wren, a fine record in their first season.

SWEEPSTAKES ENTRY DOUBLED

With 25 bowlers already entered and as many more contemplating entry, the southern duckpin sweepstakes will have more than double the number of entries that bowled last year.

Ten additional names were placed on the entry list Monday night. ~~J. R.~~ Littlefield, Howard (Strike) Parker, T. O. (Dago) Allen, G. L. Bushong, C. W. Dennis, Tom Allen, C. H. Harmon, R. D. Barze added their names to the men's list. Wilma Yeager and Louise Estes, both members of the crack Pinson Tire Company team of the Ladies' Commercial Duckpin league, signed to try their luck in bowling for the turkey day awards.

Others who have already signified their intention of bowling for the southern sweepstakes medal are Jake Srochi, G. B. Grench, A. P. McElroy, Hobart Crowe, Ed Glading, southpaw star; Al Christy, L. B. Cutler, George Tyler, A. J. Sossong, W. F. Lowry, Frank Burns, D. I. Tignor, Misses Pat Patterson and Thomas.

Separate divisions will be bowled for men and women. The winner of each will be declared the champion and awarded the National Duckpin Bowling Congress medal. Second place will be given a turkey, in both divisions.

Mike Chambers Leaves Today To Join Miami Health Club

By Ralph McGill.

Michael Chambers leaves today for Miami where he will be connected with the Miami Health Club, aiding the ultra-violet of the sun in putting health back into unhealthy human frames.

Michael will be missed in Atlanta. His personality always was positive. Sometimes it was the sunshine and sometimes the rain but he always was positive.

He had the restlessness of the Irish in him, wanting to go down to the sea in ships, wanting to bundle and go.

Michael was trainer at Tech for five years. The day he arrived, a Sunday afternoon, a bear chased him into a closet and kept him prisoner. It was the bear belonging to Stumpy Thomason, then a football hero at Tech, and the bear had grown from a cub to a big fellow after being presented as a mascot following Tech's 1929 victory over California in the Rose Bowl.

Chambers is one of the finest trainers in the game and his work was always tops. He had trained the 1928 Olympic team, had worked with the Pittsburgh Pirates and at Ohio State. He had played guard on the Illinois team with Red Grange and Jim McMillin.

Mike leaves with the best wishes of the hundreds of friends who knew him at Tech. His successor will not be appointed at Tech until later in the year. Chambers resigned last week.

Coach McGugin Puts 4 Alabama Men on All-Southeastern

Dixon Is Named At Quarterback

All-Southeastern Eleven

Center	Robinson, Tulane
Right Guard	Marr, Alabama
Left Guard	Warmath, Tennessee
Right Tackle	Lee, Alabama
Left Tackle	Rukas, Louisiana
Right End	Geny, Vanderbilt
Left End	Hutson, Alabama
Quarterback	Dixon, Vanderbilt
Left Halfback	Howell, Alabama
Right Halfback	Simons, Tulane
Fullback	Mickall, Louisana

By Dan E. McGugin,
Head Football Coach, Vanderbilt University.

The All-Southeastern team might be beaten by some team in another section, but it would take a great eleven to defeat it. It would have great team speed, power, deadly blocking, tackling and charging, wonderful passing and punting and some great running backs.

It is interesting in studying the coaches' selections to note how nearly they are in agreement on some selections and how far apart they are on others. The coaches seem to feel that Simons, Howell, Mickal and Dixon must be in the backfield. Fifty percent of the vote suggested Mickal for fullback, whereas he has been listed in Louisiana's line-up most of the season as a halfback.

While in a game for Louisiana, Mickal does the punting and passing, but he rarely carries the ball, except ing at points ordinarily attacked by the fullback. He is a great blocker, a talent essential to a fullback, so he may logically be placed at that position.

BRILLIANT BACK.

Simons is a 190-pound back, very fast, and has made brilliant runs in practically all of Tulane's games this year. A majority of coaches consider Milliard Howell, Alabama halfback, weight 165 pounds, the most valuable player in the conference. He runs, punts and passes brilliantly and is a great defensive player.

Dixon and Geny at Vanderbilt were selected apparently because of Dixon's great punting and passing and the completion of passes to Geny in important games. Geny is a fine defensive end, excellent under punts, and has received passes for touchdowns in practically all of Vanderbilt's games. This is the more remarkable inasmuch as Vanderbilt has not had the backs for a first-class running attack, successful passing being more difficult without fine ball carrying. All four of these backs are brilliant punters and passers.

If there is a better tackle in the county than Lee, of Alabama, I have not heard of him. He weighs 220 pounds, is fast and aggressive, all that a good tackle should be. Rukas, of Louisiana, weighing about 195 pounds, is a great tackle and a fine open-field blocker.

AGGRESSIVE GUARDS.

In Marr, of Alabama, and Warmath, of Tennessee, the team would have two fine aggressive guards, fast and capable of open-field interference. Robinson, of Tulane, at center, is not a big man, but his opponents all say he is a fine passer and a very tough defensive customer.

Hutson, of Alabama, is a big end, weighing around 185 pounds, and has been brilliant in receiving passes and under punts and very effective as a ball carrier on an end-around play. He is said to have run 100 yards in less than 10 seconds.

Other men who were highly praised by the coaches are Gilbert, Auburn center; Tessier, Tulane line man; Bailey, Tennessee tackle; Patterson and Rogers, Auburn tackles; Demyanovich, Alabama fullback; Grant, of Georgia; Fatharee and Sullivan, of Louisiana; Palmer, Vaughn and Dickens, of Tennessee; Chase of Florida; Armstrong, of Mississippi State, and Mitchell, of Auburn, and Johnson, of Kentucky, backs. There are many fine players for all positions in the Southeastern Conference, and this All-Southeastern team could have excellent reserve strength.

'I Like Alabama,' Bob Jones Says

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—(AP)—If Stanford ani Alabama play in the Rose Bowl, Robert T. Jones Jr. will support the boys from Tuscaloosa.

The golf star saw the Stanford-California game Saturday. If he had some money to bet on a New Year's game and Stanford was playing Alabama his money would not be on Stanford, he said today.

"The two west coast teams seemed very slow in getting started," said Bob, "but it was easy to see too they were keyed up for the game."

N'west Tigers Unbeaten Since '31

By Roy White.

Atlanta's football season is not without its undefeated teams.

Boys' High has won 11 straight and the city championship.

The Northwest Tigers, a sandlot eleven under 15 years of age and weighing less than 110 pounds per boy, is undefeated also. And the Tigers' winning streak dates back to the beginning of the 1932 season.

They won seven games and tied one in 1932. In 1933 the Tigers won nine and tied one and in the 1934 season, the Tigers have won four and tied four.

Victories have been won over McCallie Juniors at Chattanooga, Y. M. C. A. juniors, the Pioneer Class and the O'Keefe Midgets.

It is a great little sandlot club, and one which the public will have an opportunity to see in action twice this week.

The Tigers play the O'Keefe Midgets Monday afternoon on the O'Keefe field and close the season at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park with the Y. M. C. A. Juniors.

Three games in five days, is the way the Tigers play football, as they fought a scoreless tie with Darlington Saturday in Rome.

The team is coached by Ardell Nations and its members include Ellsberry, Burton, Rogers, Cane, Cranford, Smith, Jack and Ralph Cox, Barrett, Soyar, Bentley, Johnson, Sailors, Orr and the Waddell brothers.

Down the Alleys

The Motion Picture Duckpin league has four good matches for tonight. With R.-K.-O. bowling National Screen, Warner Bros. tieing up with Theatrical Printing, Fox meeting Paramount, Columbia matching scores with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Theatrical Printing and Paramount are tied for the lead, both having won 17 and lost but 4.

Leaders in the individual standings for averages, for 15 or more games, are S. Laird, 103; Epperson, 102; Reid, 101; Word, 101; Bloodworth, 100; Angier, 100. Barnes has 113 for six games; Mitchell 103 for nine games and there are many others close to the century mark.

Bowling, being especially effective in reducing the hips and strengthening the abdominal muscles, as well as the legs and arms, is a most fascinating way for women to keep physically fit and take off surplus. A decided increase in the number of women bowlers this season shows the trend of the fair sex toward enjoying this interesting recreation, while attempting to keep that girlish figure.

The Fire Insurance calls for Hartford vs. Commercial Union; Travelers vs. America Fore; Aetna Casualty vs. Cotton Insurance Association. Commercial Union is leading in games won.

A postponed match between the Southern Dairies and J. M. Harrison Company, Commercial league teams, will be played this evening. Gulley leads the Harrison team and Heine tops the Southern Dairies five. The Bamby Baker Boys league is scheduled on adjoining alleys.

Spaulding, Foll, Hill and Jinks are doing some splendid bowling in the Passenger Club Duckpin league. Spaulding's 336 is the season record for three games in this loop.

Aces vs. Hartford Fire Insurance; A. L. Zachry vs. Gaylord Container; Porky's Grill vs. Anderson's Flower Shop; Davey Plumbing & Heating vs. Knights of Columbus are scheduled, in the order mentioned, in the Georgia Tenpin league.

Casey Is Reported Ready To Resign

The old halfback who reeled off many a yard for Harvard in the days when the Crimson goose hung high, has decided to relinquish the reins of coachship after the most disastrous season in the history of Harvard football.

The names of several are bantered about as possible successors—Kipke, Kerr, Little, Adam Walsh, Arnold Horween. But it was all guesswork. Formal announcement of Casey's resignation has not been made.

Furman, Citadel Eye Conference

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—South Carolina may have four colleges in the Southern conference next year instead of two.

Dr. R. K. Foster, director of student activities at the University of South Carolina here, revealed that the University was sponsoring both The Citadel and Furman University for membership in the conference.

Taylor To Manage Rock Island Club

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Tommy Taylor, spending the winter in Memphis, said today that he will go to Rock Island, Ind., early in 1935 to take up his duties as manager of the Rock Island club of the Western. Taylor manned the Charlotte club of the Piedmont league last year.

Taylor has played with Memphis, New Orleans, Birmingham and Knoxville in the Southern association.

ALL-SOUTHERN ELEVEN LISTS FIVE DUKE MEN

Tarheels Place Three Stars on Team for This Year.

By Joseph Nettles.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A hefty, fast-charging line and a fast, fairly heavy backfield compose the 1935 All-Southern conference football team.

Sports writers and coaches who participated in the annual poll gave five places on the all-star eleven to Duke players and placed three members of North Carolina's great team. Maryland, V. P. I. and N. C. State are represented by a single player.

Conspicuously absent from the line-up are members of the Washington and Lee eleven which will meet South Carolina Thursday at Columbia with the Southern conference championship the Generals' prize if they win. The Generals' well-rounded strength, however, is shown by their heavy representation on second and third elevens.

These are the players who "made the team" and the votes they received:

JORDAN TRAINS FOR KRONERT

There are several reasons for Jordan's action in getting himself into prime condition. First of all, Jordan is an outstanding claimant for the southern light-heavyweight wrestling championship. And he hasn't lost a match here in two years.

The big reason is Hans Kronert, the German boy from Columbus, Ohio, Jordan's opponent on Friday night.

The fans went kind of wild over Kronert last week at the city auditorium when the German boy disposed of Honey Boy Hackney, the splendidly built Jersey wrestler.

Kronert came here highly recommended and immediately lived up to all advance notices. Fans were beginning to believe that Hackney was unbeatable.

So the burden of proof is on Tarzan Jordan Friday night. For Jordan got only a draw in his match with Hackney several weeks ago.

Hackney is still very popular with the fans and Matchmaker Thompson is bringing him back to meet Erick Fugleberg, the big Viking who roughed up Bill Crussell last week. The boxing commission awarded Crussell the match because of Fugleberg's continual roughing.

Glen Cowan, Atlanta policeman-wrestler, will meet Bob Anderson, pride of Decatur, in the opener. Anderson's first appearance in the auditorium last week saw him get a victory over Red Dugan. It was a very popular win.

Tickets are on sale at the Five Points Soda Company or may be reserved by calling Dearborn 3932. Popular prices prevail.

Georgia To Honor Prominent Alumni

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Five men who have been prominent in University of Georgia affairs will be presented large athletic blankets during the Georgia-Georgia Tech game here Saturday.

The five are:

Dr. Charles H. Herty, of Savannah. He was one of those responsible for the first organized athletic program at the university.

Georgia Works Late For Game With Tech

By Ralph McGill.

It was 7 o'clock of Monday evening and the operator said that Mister Harry May-Hare was not in but expected later.

He finally got there, along about half past seven o'clock.

"How come such a late hour?"

"We have a football game Saturday here at Athens," said Mr. Harry Mehre, whom the long distance operators persistently refer to as "Mr. May-Hare." "The Techs are coming."

"You don't mean you are worried about th—"

"Yes, I do," he interrupted, "Mr. Herman Stegeman saw them Saturday against Florida and he was surprised. It requires a great deal to surprise Mr. Stegeman. He reported that Tech looked to be really organized, played a fine football game against Florida and, but for a blocked kick, would have won by three or four touchdowns. A blocked kick put the Florida team back in the game."

"But, surely, you don't think the Techs can beat your—"

"Say," he said, "much stranger things have happened than Tech beating us. They will play their best game. Suppose we are flat out there and Tech gets us down. They'd never let loose.

WORK LATE.

"Our boys are going to work late every day. We don't know what offense Tech will use. Tech has used two or three. We have got a lot to do."

"Well, the boys are all well?"

"No, we've lost Opper, our big tackle. He broke two toes in the Auburn game. That's a new one for a football player, broken toes. And we won't have Al Minot, halfback. He is definitely out. He looked great in the Yale game and we could use him. But we can't. His leg is hurt badly. We'll have Charley Harold back. He hasn't played any since the week of the Furman game, the second one on our card. He should help out some."

"How do the boys feel about Tech?"

"I don't know. I'm afraid they may be a little too confident. But we'll get down to work. They know that Stegeman doesn't get surprised easily."

"They looked pretty good beating Auburn, playing mechanically and not in an inspired manner."

MECHANICAL.

"Well, they got a bit inspired in that third-quarter drive. That was good. The rest of the time they were a bit mechanical. But I don't think mechanical play will help us out.

"They reported here that Shorty Roberts would be the best passer we have seen. I am worrying about that. The scouts said he and the whole Tech team were just now reaching their real form. They almost beat us last year, we had just one point more in that 7-to-6 game. I'm not trying to ballyhoo the game. We're really worried."

"Then to call you any time this week I must call after 7 o'clock.

MORRIS BROWN TO PLAY CLARK

The football game between Clark University and Morris Brown College Thursday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, will decide the Southern Colored Conference championship and the municipal title.

Morris Brown College will be risking an undefeated record against the Clark eleven, who has a good chance of upsetting the dope-bucket, thereby establishing themselves as city champions and a claim to conference honors. For the last two years, no southern football aggregation has defeated the Wolverines and only Kentucky mars their path to a perfect record which is a non-conference team.

Half the grandstand will be set aside to accommodate the large crowd of white fans who annually witness this game and the singing of the student body along with two raging bands will feature the meeting of the two elevens.

JONES, CHEWACKI BATTLE TONIGHT AT AUDITORIUM

Numa and Davis To Meet in Semi-Windup of Mat Show.

John Paul Jones, the Texas hook scissors artist, is coming back to Atlanta tonight to attempt to show Atlanta mat fans that his draw last week was all a mistake.

Jones returned after an absence of many months to find his popularity at a high level and managed only to get a draw with Orville Brown, the rugged midwesterner.

The Texan, who has always given Atlanta mat patrons his best, felt rather badly about it. So he asked Matchmaker Henry Weber to give him another chance. Weber agreed. And so it is to be Paul Jones against Chief Chewacki, the wild aborigine, in the main event tonight.

MAY BE GOOD.

Chewacki has promised to be good. But there is suspicion that it may be just an Indian trick. Chewacki promised the same thing in Nashville recently and then threw pepper into an opponent's eyes.

The Indian is cordially hated but always gives the fans a chance to express themselves. And they like it.

Paul Jones is the choice of the people and they are hoping that he puts the terrible Chief in his place for once and for all tonight.

POPULARITY TEST.

Davis will test Numa's newly won popularity. He has the means at his command to make the Lion Man go the limit. Numa made a big hit with the fans last week when he refused a foul and beat Whitey Hewitt by right of might.

Several fans asked Matchmaker Weber to bring him back. So Weber scouted around for an opponent and decided on Davis.

Clarkston Plays Flashes Thursday

The East Lake Flashes will play the Clarkston eleven Thursday at the Rose Bowl field. A hard game is expected as both teams are evenly matched, having each been beaten by the Decatur Bantams by the same score, 18 to 0.

The game is scheduled for 10 o'clock and admission is free.

On the Air Today

CROONER CROSBY—Recovered from the cold which brought disappointment to hosts of feminine admirers last Tuesday, Bing Crosby has prepared a musical apology in the form of contributions from his new film, "Here Is My Heart," during the broadcast over WGST and the Columbia network this evening, from 8 to 8:30 o'clock. Kitty Carlisle and Marion Mansfield, co-stars in the film, will join with him in presenting amusing tid-bits from the show and in introducing the new hit tunes, "June in January," "With Every Breath I Take" and "Love Is Just Around the Corner."

GUESTS—Isham Jones will salute a fellow composer, Arthur Schwartz, and will play host to a famous piano team during his broadcast over WGST this evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock. Schwartz will be honored in medley from his most popular works, including "Dancing in the Dark" and "New Sun in the Sky," from the "Band Wagon." Lee Simms and Ilomay, Bailey, radio, stage, screen and phonographic recording artists, who gained their reputation by unusual two-piano and song interpretations, will present "The Continental" and "Moonlight on the Ganges" during the program.

GALAXY—Another all-star afternoon Columbia Variety hour will be presented over WGST today from 2 to 3 o'clock with Vera Van, Connie Gates, Emery Deutsch and Nick Lucas heading a program of fun and music. "Fats" Waller will offer a bit of musical nonsense. The bands will be directed alternately by Deutsch and Freddy Rich.

PICK—Ted Husing will reveal his seventh all-radio football team, selected from combinations he has seen in action during the season, in the Caravan broadcast over WGST and the CBS chain this evening at 9 o'clock. Kenny Sargent will sing "It's June in January," from Bing Crosby's new film, with Glen Gray and the Casa Loma orchestra accompanying him.

Ten-Man Team Plays 3 Games In Five Days

Playing without any reserves and only 10 players, the Northwest Tigers defeated the O'Keefe Midgets, 26 to 0, Monday afternoon on the O'Keefe field. It was the second game in three days for the Tigers, who Saturday played the Darlington Midgets a scoreless tie at Rome.

Monday's victory was the fifth of the season and extended the Tigers' undefeated record one more game. The Tigers started their winning ways at the beginning of the 1932 season and have not been defeated during 1932, 1933 and thus far this year.

The Tigers will close their schedule at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with the Y. M. C. A. Juniors at Ponce de Leon park. The game will be free to the public.

Byron Waddell led the Tigers' parade. He scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter. His first came when he intercepted a pass and ran 20 yards, and the other was a result of a short line buck, which followed a 40-yard drive.

Ralph Cox scored the first late in the first quarter on a 20-yard dash around right end, and Hancock scored the other touchdown in the third quarter on a short line buck.

PURPLE TO PLAY SYDNEY LANIER, ENSLEY IN 1935

Commercial To Open Boys' High Grid Schedule Next Year.

By Roy White.

Two new elevens, both with excellent records in the past few years, will appear on the 1935 Boys' High football schedule, it was learned Monday. Ensley High, of Birmingham, undefeated this year, and Sidney Lanier, of Montgomery, will be the new additions.

Ensley will be played at Ponce de Leon park in the third game of the season, the exact date to be set later. Sidney Lanier will be played on November 16 at Montgomery, Ala.

In addition to the Montgomery trip, two others and likely a third will be on the 1935 card. Lanier High will be played on November 10 at Macon and Savannah will be played a return game in Savannah.

Another Thanksgiving trip to Miami is in the making and will be definitely arranged or canceled when the Purples play Thursday in the Florida city.

Commercial High will again open the Purples' card in an early September game, probably on the 12th or 13th, the date depending on just when Ponce de Leon park can be secured for the night game.

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The stock market took another step forward today on its slow climb up the recovery route.

Trading was comparatively broad and active, and shifted toward the recently unpopular utility group as industrials encountered some profit-taking.

Setting the best example of rapid recovery for the utilities, American Telephone rallied above 110 compared with its recent low around 100 and finished more than a point up.

The move by utility interests, banded together in the Edison Electric Institute, to fight government encroachment in the power industry evidently heartened the market. Speculative interest in the power group was stimulated by a spurt of more than a point in North American. The company substituted a quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents a share for 12 1-2 cents cash and 1 per cent in stock it had been paying.

Consolidated Gas stretched its advance to nearly 2 points as fresh buying went into the utilities in late trading.

The financial atmosphere lost none of its cheerfulness over the week-end and most markets drew sustenance from rising business hopes. Second-grade railroad bonds were conspicuous in a further advance in that market and commodities on the whole pursued a fairly even course. Grains retreated, wheat ending 7-8 to 1 3-8 cents a bushel lower, but cotton clung to gains of 50 to 65 cents a bale.

Steel shares added to their week-end gains as the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated operations of the industry had risen another half point to 28.1 per cent of capacity.

United States Steel preferred rose 2 points to 84. The common and Bethlehem Steel, American Rolling Mill, Republic Steel and National Steel were up fractionally to more than a point.

Rail stocks as well as bonds derived some strength from statements in RFC quarters that the government would not press railroads for liquidation of their borrowings.

UTILITIES STRONG ON CURB MARKET

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Utilities were conspicuously firm on the curb exchange today. Aside from a few specialties, other parts of the list finished narrow. The volume of trading was the largest in some time.

A mild rally in the forenoon prompted some profit-taking but the list again stiffened in the final trading as the demand for power shares assumed good proportions.

American Gas & Electric, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Gas & Electric of Baltimore, United Gas preferred and American Light & Traction all got up a point or more. Electric Bond & Share firmed a major fraction in a large turnover.

Safety Car Heating was up 2 1-4, while Aluminum Company of America and Pan-American Airways gained about a point each.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 15 points up at 12.75. Receipts 43; shipments 435; stock 139,257.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Cotton futures moved out of their recent narrow range today for a good advance. There was an active demand in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and talk of improving business prospects. The market reacted a little from the best levels closing steady at net advances of 10 to 15 points.

Initial prices were 8 to 10 points higher on foreign buying and indications of a good demand for the first December notices. The latter were estimated at about 14,000 bales which was below expectations.

The early offerings of December were absorbed at narrowing differences between months. This made a favorable impression on sentiment which was also influenced by the firmness of the stock market. Before the end of the morning December sold up to 12.49 and May to 12.60 making net advances of 15 to 20 points.

The demand tapered off after the close of Liverpool while some of the December notices continued to circulate, bringing out further scattering liquidation in that position.

December sold off to 12.40 on the reaction and May to 12.56, but last prices were a few points up from these figures on covering, with December 9 points under July compared with 11 points at the close of Saturday.

Exports today 15,896, making 1,835,241 so far this season. Port receipts 23,508. United States port stocks 3,203,841.

COTTON IN NEW ORLEANS ADVANCES 11 TO 13 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The cotton market was quite active most of the morning but became quieter during the afternoon. Much higher Liverpool cables than due, a fair trade demand and firmer stocks were responsible for an advance of 15 to 16 points during the morning but nearly half of this gain was lost in the early afternoon on realizing. The market became firmer in the late trading, recovering 3 to 6 points of the previous loss and closed very steady with prices showing net gains for the day of 11 to 13 points.

The opening was active and firmer. Private cables stated that Liverpool responded to improvement in far east markets and good Bombay buying.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow unchanged to 1 penny point down.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The bond market displayed further rallying tendencies today under leadership of secondary issues which apparently reflected the improved sentiment for stocks.

While gains ranged from 1 to 3 points in the speculative classifications, the activity was not pronounced. Transfers totaled $10,704,000, par value, against $11,362,000 last Friday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced another two-tenths of a point to 84.5.

Various bonds were aided by better trade and industrial reports and the rails seemed to derive renewed hope from the statement of Chairman Jones, of the RFC, that the organization would not press the roads for repayment of loans.

Among the better carriers were Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s, up 1 3-4 at 68 1-4; N. Y. Central 4 1-2s of 2013, up 1 1-2 at 57 1-2; Frisco 5s of 1950, up 2 at 14; Southern 6 1-2s, up 2 1-8 at 77 1-2, and Wabash 5 1-2s, up 2 at 16 1-2.

Utility and industrial gainers included Sharon Steel Hoop 5 1-2s, up 3 at 8 1-2; International Telephone 5s, up 1 at 59 1-4; International Hydro-Electric 6s, up 1 1-8 at 47 3-8; General Steel Castings 5 1-2s, up 1 at 83 1-4; American Water Works 6s, up 3 at 78, and American Rolling Mill 5s, up 3 at 110.

United States government securities were dull and slightly irregular. Gains of 1-32nd to 5-32nds of a point, however, predominated. The turnover in this section amounted to only about $940,000.

Polish government 7s rallied 3 1-2 points to 114 1-2 and improvement was shown by loans of Germany and Argentina.

Refined was unchanged locally, although the undertone was unsettled by the concessions being granted by some of the out-of-town refiners. Prices were quoted at 4.50 for fine granulated.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Coffee was irregular today, with near months depressed in the early trading due to the issuance of December notices representing 10,000 bags of Santos contracts and 3,000 bags on "A" deliveries. Later a steadier undertone developed when the trade absorbed the near-month liquidation.

Santos opened 7 lower to 1 higher and closed 4 ot 7 higher. Sales 48,000. No. 7 opened 6 lower to 1 higher and closed 3 higher to 2 lower. Sales 43,000. Graft Is Charged To Treasury Aids

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Pretended compliance by an unnamed businessman when offered an inside settlement of a big income tax case for a cash consideration was credited by Secretary Morgenthau today with uncovering two treasury employes who he asserted were "selling out" the government.

The case involved was for "several hundred thousand dollars" but the two internal revenue workers, who Morgenthau said were "right at the point where these cases are settled one way or the other" were understood to have handled tax controversies mounting into many millions during their term of service.

Both, now dismissed, face grand jury action for what Morgenthau described as "defrauding the government."

HAUPTMANN SUBJECT OF MRS. MORRIS' TALK

Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris will continue her series of talks on "Living Immortals" with a lecture on Gerhart Hauptmann this morning at 10 o'clock in Rech's tea room.

Hauptmann, now 81, was one of the first 12 living authors to be awarded the Nobel prize in literature. His novels and dramatic works have earned him international fame.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed steady today, 2 points higher to 2 lower on sales of 38 contracts. Firmness of crude oil with sales at 8½ cents at primary points, a new high for the year, brought in support as did the firmness of cotton. However, the disappointing action of lard and grains caused moderate liquidation in the more distant positions. Bleachable spot nominal, December closed 9.50; January 9.47; March 9.55; May 9.67.

NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—Cottonseed oil futures were fairly steady today with prices well maintained and trading fair. Prime summer yellow oil closed unchanged at 9.00 to 9.15 and prime crude closed at 8.37½ to 8.50c. Futures closed steady, December 9.09; January 9.13; March 9.25; May 9.35.

Rioting Proceedes Car Strike Truce

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A riotous downtown demonstration in which 25 Los Angeles railway cars were stalled and hundreds of persons cheered or booed was broken up tonight by police tear gas bombs as announcement came of a possible truce in the street car strike.

For almost an hour traffic was snarled at Seventh street and South Broadway as strike sympathizers, encouraged and booed by spectators and passengers, jerked trolleys, jeered car crews and released air from car brakes.

All police reserves were rushed into the area and the crowd cleared away with tear gas after ten men had been arrested and one policeman injured.

Europe Wheat Nations In General Agreement

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The sixth international wheat conference officially announced tonight that both the exporting and importing countries of Europe, including Russia, were "in general agreement" on new proposals under consideration for regulation of the wheat trade.

The conference completed its discussion of all proposals on the agenda, including schemes for both annual and quarterly export quotas and for a quota reserve, after which it was officially stated that several countries had suggested "minor alterations."

Meanwhile, the deadlock caused by Argentina's refusal to accept the 1933 wheat pact as a basis for reducing acreage in the "Big Four" countries—the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—continued.

Husband Leaves Home When Twins Are Born

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The nurse walked into the waiting room and corrected her earlier report to Leo Lopatka, a milkman.

"Two of them," she said, "both boys—twins."

And that was the last either the nurse or Mrs. Lopatka saw of Leo, the wife told Judge Desort today. The judge granted Mrs. Lopatka a divorce.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Selling in a thin market pulled price of all grain futures downward today notwithstanding that cash corn rose to $1.03, a new peak since 1930.

Much of the selling both of wheat and corn futures, appeared to be based on the advice of an Illinois market forecaster. Reports of widespread beneficial rains over the domestic wheat belt counted also as a bearish factor.

Wheat closed weak, 7-8 to 1 3-8 under Saturday's finish, May 97 1-2 to 97 5-8, corn 3-9 to 1 1-8 off, May 85 7-8 to 86, oats 1-2 to 1 1-8 down, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Transient early upturns of the Chicago wheat and corn markets resulted from Liverpool wheat quotations higher than expected and from reports of adverse harvesting yields in Argentina, together with word of some rust damage to the new Argentine wheat crop.

Corn futures sympathized with the bearish action of wheat, speculative buying interest being decidedly deficient. Talk of prospective feedstuff importations had more or less bearish influence as to corn. Oats mainly followed corn.

Provisions were easy, responsive to the trend of the hog market.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—The immediate market outlook appears to embrace the possibility of some technical correction such as frequently appears after a movement has extended into some new high territory.

BEER & COMPANY—Market influences continue to favor irregularly higher prices.

COURTS & COMPANY—We still feel that all dips, however minor, should be used to pick up stocks of companies showing up trend in business volume.

DOBBS & COMPANY—The continuance of strength in the stock market after the week-end is encouraging, but the difficulty with which the rails make and retain any appreciable advance causes some apprehension as to the extent of the upward trend.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE—The way seems to be clear for further gains.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—Sentiment is improving and we look for the market to do better.

BEER & COMPANY—We still favor a trading position in the market, with preference for the long side.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—It is doubtful whether the official announcement of a voluntary acreage curtailment program for 1935 expected this week will tell us anything for which the market is unprepared, but were it not for such uncertainty as may be felt regarding its details and the approach of the Thanksgiving Day adjournment, we would be more inclined to anticipate an immediate broadening of buying interest.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE—As a result of the efforts of bankers and the administration to foster exports many in the trade look for a continued foreign demand for American cotton and this should encourage more speculative participation.

FENNER & BEANE—Until buying is more persistent on hard spots, the wheat market will continue a two-sided proposition.

ARTILLERY BATTERY WINS KNOX TROPHY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Knox trophy, annually presented to the army's most efficient field artillery battery, was awarded today to Battery B, 13th field artillery, stationed at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Market Outlook

by MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(UP)—Traders tonight waited expectantly for "consolidation" to come into the stock market after recent good gains.

The fourth consecutive rising market was recorded today, with the close strong and active as result of what almost might be termed a technicality. A supreme court justice in Albany issued an order restraining the state public service commission from enforcing reduced rates in the Bronx and Yonkers.

Just why this should affect Pacific coast utility companies, seems strange. Only by establishing a precedent could it be of value to companies outside of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, which furnishes power to the two cities. But there were a number of shorts in the utility list—one in particular on some of the California issues—and they covered hurriedly as the announcement came in.

SHORT SELLING.

Possibly the movement, covering and rising prices, exhausted itself in the final 15 minutes of trading and there were some in the Street who felt utilities were a definite short sale at current quotations. Some "short" sentiment was based on the statement of Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, today, who indicated the belief that the senate would take up consideration of regulation of utility holding companies.

The final splurge in utilities today brought the entire market up—after it had slid from the strong morning level—and resulted in the heaviest trading since November 15. There were 1,410,000 shares exchanged and the Dow-Jones industrial average at the close stood at 103.08, the highest level since April 27.

Normally, traders said, some consolidation of gains could be expected to come into the market now. Prices have maintained a forward trend for some time. In addition Thursday is a holiday and there will be some profit-taking prior to that respite from trading. Thus the timorous traders, Well Street believed, would be wise in clinging to the sidelines until after Thanksgiving.

FAVORABLE FACTORS.

Meanwhile news before the market mostly was favorable and included:

Steel production, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute, this week is at 28.1 per cent of capacity, a gain of 1-2 point from the previous week and 53 per cent from the year's low.

Statement of Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that there is no disposition now to press railroads for loan payments. This is in accordance with rumors that the loaning agency is attempting to stave off any further railroad receiverships until after congress has met and decided on some railroad relief measure.

Statement of Winthrop Aldrich, of the Chase National bank, after a tour in the midwest, that there are definite signs of improved business.

NO RAIL RECEIVERSHIPS IMPENDING, SAYS JONES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A statement that no major receiverships in railroads are impending was made today by Chairman Jones, of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Asked at his press conference concerning reports that he was going to see to it that there were no receiverships, Jones said:

"I haven't made any such statement, but so far as I know, no receiverships are impending."

The chairman also said the corporation would extend a $7,000,000 loan to the Southern railroad.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 62
By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When Naomi was back in the hands of the Arabs, Atewy demanded at once: "Where is the other one?" "She was killed by a lion," the girl sobbed. Atewy shrugged. "Well, we still have you to read the map." But the sinister Atewy had other plans for Naomi after she had served that purpose.

The girl recalled seeing the volcanic hill which was indicated on the map. "If I lead you to the Valley of Diamonds, will you return me to my people?" she asked eagerly. Atewy translated and the sheik nodded. "Tell her we promise; but you need not tell her that we may forget our promise."

The Arabs, fatigued by their pursuit of the fugitives, made camp. Next morning the cavalcade crossed the shallow river to the plain. The sheik was elated when he beheld the volcanic hill and located it on the map. "We cross the big river," he chuckled, "and soon we come to the Valley of Diamonds."

But when they came to the wide, swift stream, they saw it teemed with giant crocodiles. "If we cross, some of us shall die," said Atewy. The sheik nodded. "True, Atewy, some shall die." "Suppose the girl should die?" The sheik shrugged; "Perhaps we can do well enough without her."

DAILY SHORT STORY

PRUDENT PRUE

Marketing "Upshootos" Was Serious to Prudence, But Suitor Tom Combined the Job With Pleasure.

By JAMES E. HUNGERFORD.

"I do wish you were more responsible!" snapped Prudence Price, flicking a blond curl into place. "The first thing you know the boss will hand you a one-way pass out the door, and you'll land in the breadline! Why don't you snap into high gear?"

"An' get pinched for speeding," drawled Tom White, grinningly. "Honest, Prue, you're as serious as an owl! I can't understand what's come over you. Jerry must have said something—"

"He's said several things, and that's why I'm urging you to face facts!" broke in Prudence. "Jerry Black has not half your ability, but he's your boss, at six thousand a year! If you'd be serious—"

"Presto—Up They Shot!"

"Never more serious in my life," drawled Tom. "And especially after that pep talk Jerry handed me this morning. 'Assert yourself, Tom!' he orated. 'You're not falling down or standing up! You're running around nights, when you ought to be burning the midnight oil planning ways to market Upshootos! And don't think the boss isn't wise! Now get out an' hit the ball!'"

"And—and what did he say" questioned Prudence anxiously.

***

"He didn't give me a chance to say anything," complained Tom. "He grabbed his grip an' dashed out of the office, leaving me to hold down his job, while he's gone. What say we knock off for the day an' go to a movie?"

Prudence seemed on the verge of tears. "Would that be fair to Jerry?" she questioned coldly. "Business is terribly dull. Oh, why won't you understand?"

"Anything you say, Prue. If you'd rather pound that ol' typewriter than see Flora Hanson in 'A Soul in Despair' it's up to you."

"Start dictating!" snapped Prudence. "That's what I'm here for, Mr. White!"

"An' the reason I'm here is because the boss likes me," muttered Tom. "If it wasn't for him Jerry would have fired me long ago. The boss has faith in me."

"And so have I," assured Prudence. "That's why I've tried to make you realize your responsibilities. If you'd just be more like Jerry—"

"I know what you think of him," put in Tom grimly. "I thought for a while it was me. Prue, but I guess—" He strode abruptly from the office.

There were a dozen salesmen in the home territory, and Jerry was hardly out of town when sales went haywire. Tom was avalanched with alibis and excuses. It was the dull time of year, and there was little demand for Upshooto parasols and umbrellas, which shot up by pressing a button on the handle. (You touched a button, and, presto!—you were under the umbrella or parasol—if the spring worked. If not you were out of luck.)

It hadn't rained for a month and the weather was foggy. Nobody wanted umbrellas to keep off water or parasols to sidetrack sunshine.

Prudence was very unhappy. She questioned Tom about his future, but he evaded the subject. "All I can think about is you," he answered gloomily.

***

Prudence gasped.

The chorus girls danced on, carrying parasols. As they moved in rhythmical formation across the stage each touched a spring on her parasol, and presto—up they shot!

"Why—why they're Upshootos!" exclaimed Prudence dazedly.

"Sure thing!" chuckled Tom. "This is Upshooto night in this man's town! Over at the Orpheum theater a dance team will spring them. At the Globe a headliner comedian will pull his patter under an Upshooto. At the State, Baxter and Baxter, the jugglers will use Upshootos in their famous balancing skit! Starting tomorrow our salesmen will do a land-office business, Prue! All they'll have to do will be take orders for Upshootos an' go to their meals! This town is going Upshooto crazy!"

"But—but I don't understand!" stammered Prudence. "And—and what will Jerry say about this when he gets back? He—he's very conservative, you know—"

"Too darn conservative!" rasped Tom.

"He's been overlooking some surefire bets! I've been waiting for him to get out of town to start something! He's afraid to take chances. In addition to the theaters, little girl, I'm springing Upshootos at the beaches. The bathing-girl parades will carry them. And all the fashion shows in town will feature Upshooto parasols. I've been working on the idea for months. That's what's kept me out nights, chasing around interviewing show managers and the like."

Prudence was too stunned for speech.

"As for Jerry Black," continued Tom, smilingly, "he's going to have a job for which he is better qualified. The boss was going to fire him, as sales have been haywire for months, but I induced the old man to put Jerry in charge of factory production. As for me—I'm the new sales manager. Boss has had his eye on me for the job for a long time. Now I'm it.

"In future, Prue dear, you'll spend your time keeping house, while I war on the rain an' sunshine with Upshootos. What say?"

Prudence was slowly recovering from the series of shocks.

"I—I suppose all I can say is yes, you wonderful boy! And—and to think I called you irresponsible!"

"I hate responsibility," drawled Tom, smilingly. "All I'll be responsible for in the future is selling Upshootos and loving you! Quick—gimme a kiss, while the theater's dark!"

Court Asked To Rule U. S. Oil Code Invalid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Contending that an emergency does not create the power to deprive a citizen of his constitutional rights, two oil producers today asked the supreme court to declare invalid the oil code and a part of the national industrial recovery act.

The brief, filed by the Panama Refining Company and A. F. Anding, an individual producer, was a forerunner of the fight to be staged in the high court on December 10 by producers in the east Texas oil fields.

The contention put forward today was that an emergency, such as congress declared to exist, would not create power whereby congress and the president could "dictate to the citizens of a state how much petroleum they can produce during any period, and the minimum wage they shall pay their employes while producing it."

It was proposed, the brief added, to prosecute criminally those who violated orders of the president to carry out the oil code.

NEWSPAPER 'ADS' BUILD GAS SALES

Two Officials Tell Public Service Board Good Results of Campaign.

Executives of two Georgia gas companies Monday told the public service commission that funds they have invested in newspaper advertising have proven highly satisfactory to their business, one of them, W. W. Winter, general manager of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, asserting that newspaper advertising this year has put the company's gross sales higher than those of 1929 for the first time.

The other witness who discussed newspaper advertising was E. J. Stern, division manager of the Central Public Utilities Corporation, which operates outside of Atlanta.

"Competing with other services, it is necessary for us to get our story before the public and we used a great deal of newspaper advertising, and with highly satisfactory results," said Mr. Winter.

"Newspaper advertising has done us lots of good in increasing the sale of appliances and the consumption of gas, and making for a continuing increase in the use of gas," he said.

Mr. Stern said: "Newspaper advertising is our main medium of advertising and we used it to build up our sales. The results have been splendid.

Mr. Winter discussed an advertising campaign the company used to increase its business and said: "We have added 6,000 new customers in the last 14 months. Most of the business outside of that brought in by solicitors has been from newspaper advertising, which also helped solicitors in their work. It has been money well spent. It put our gross sales above 1929 this year for the first time in that period."

The commission heard statistical evidence concerning operations of gas companies at Rome, Atlanta and Macon during the day and announced plans to resume the hearing next Monday.

Gross income from sale of gas for the year ending September, 1934, for the Atlanta concern was reported at $2,500,084, with $101,567 additional in miscellaneous sales. The net income of the property before deductions for fixed charges was reported at $595,000. The valuation of the Atlanta property as of October 1, 1934, was reported at $10,815,760. Similar net income figures for 1929 were reported at $1,046,771.

Revenue of the Macon company for 1929, before fixed charges, was listed at $139,260 against $78,848 in the 12 months ending September, 1934.

The contrasting figures for 1929 and 1934 were presented to show the decrease in earnings under natural gas, as compared with manufactured gas. The commission was told that natural gas has nearly twice as much heating value as artificial gas.

THREE PERSONS HURT IN AUTO-TRUCK CRASH

Three persons were injured Monday morning in an automobile accident at Crew and Glenn streets, according to police reports.

Miss Barbara Anne Cohen, 16, and Miss Alice Mae Gordon, 23, both of 1065 Lawton street, were cut and bruised when the car driven by Sam Cohen, of 1065 Lawton street, collided with a truck operated by John Henderson, negro, of a Butler street address. Cohen was hurt about the face and shoulder. The two young women were admitted to St. Joseph's infirmary where their condition was said to be fairly good Monday night. Several others in the Cohen car were shaken up and bruised but did not go to the hospital. Police made a case of reckless driving against the negro.

Clarence Adams, 24, and Claud Cook, both of Alpharetta, who were injured Sunday in an accident near Alpharetta, were reported in a fairly good condition Monday night at Grady hospital, where they were brought Monday for treatment. Cook has a possible fracture of the skull and Adams' pelvis bone was fractured.

Alcohol Unit Workers Lose Point in Job Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Nine hundred employes of the alcohol tax unit facing removal December 1, today lost the first move of their legal fight to keep their jobs.

Transferred to the treasury from the old prohibition unit in the justice department, they were required to qualify anew for their positions by a competitive civil service examination. All failed in the tests which they contended were suited more for recent college graduates.

Failing to get their injunction today, the "horse sense test" sufferers have two roads open to them. They can carry their case on to the supreme court in an effort to find some loophole in the McKellar amendment to the treasury appropriation bill, which forced the examination. They can go to congress, asking for another law to reinstate them in their alcohol tax unit jobs.

Two Disabled Boats Are Located at Sea

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Two disabled yachts, missing on the Atlantic with 15 persons aboard, were found early today.

The schooner White Gold, its steering gear disabled on a scientific and treasure-hunting expedition to the Spanish main, was located 300 miles northeast of Puerto Rico by the S. S. Rangitata. The steamer, which wireless coast guards that it was standing by, gave no details. Eleven men are on the White Cloud.

Creeping shoreward with only a staysail, the Ketch Fayaway was found by the coast guard cutter Mascountin 35 miles off Chesapeake light vessel, near Norfolk, Va. A family of four was aboard.

BOOKKEEPER ENDS LIFE TO ESCAPE CREDITORS

Banker Killed Family, Self, Expert Believes

DEMOPOLIS, Ala., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A fingerprint expert today advanced the theory that Frank C. Smith, 36-year-old banker, had killed his wife, their infant daughter, a stepson and himself early yesterday as the answer to the mysterious quadruple slaying.

G. B. Porter, the expert of the Selma police department, after examining the fingerprints on two pistols found in the room with the four dead persons and those of Smith, said he was convinced that the man was responsible for all the deaths.

Coroner C. Hickman, however, kept the mystery angle alive with the statement that there was a "slim chance" an outsider might have been responsible for the multiple deaths.

Three aunts of Frank C. Smith reside in Atlanta. Smith had visited his relatives here several times.

He was the nephew of Mrs. Foster C. Law, of 744 Penn avenue, N. E.; Mrs. George Saunders, of 760 Myrtle street, N. E., and Miss Nettie Smith, of 760 Myrtle street. Miss Smith was for many years connected with the civil service commission here and retired last January.
